KANSAS POLITICS.

State of Public Sentiment in Kansas Territory---Division of Sentiment Among the People.

The Conference Bill Acceptable to the People---Lecompton Certain to be Rejected.

An Independent and Disinterested View of Kansas Affairs.

From Our Special Correspondent.

LEAVENWORTH CITY, K. T., April 25, 1858.

During last week I was engaged in traveling over a portion of the Territory, visiting Lawrence, Shawnee, Lecompton, Tecumseh and Topeka, with a view of talking with men of all parties in different sections, hearing their views, and thus judging for myself what really is the sentiment of the people of the Territory in relation to the contest between Free and Slave Labor, which still impends here, though it is nearly over. I was absent upon this duty on Wednesday night last, when occurred in Leavenworth what seems to have been one of the most exciting scenes, and, for the time, one of the most threatening affairs which has transpired in the Territory. Hearing of it, and that there might still be more of it, I returned at once to gather the facts, which appear, from a comparison of accounts, to be about as follows:

There are in Leavenworth three parties, in fact. There are very few Pro-Slavery men left, and among them only two of the original "Border Ruffians," named FRANKLIN and CURTIS. Few as they are, however, the Pro-Slavery men, and a body of a couple of hundred Irishmen under their influence, must necessarily be treated as a distinct party, although even FRANKLIN claims to be a Free-State man, now that the battle is over, and Free Labor triumphant. It is proper to say here that I do not understand the Irishmen, as a general thing, to be Pro-Slavery men, but simply that there are quite a number of them here, who, as "Democrats," stand out against the Free-State Party, and are easily influenced and controlled by the "Border Ruffians' aforesaid. FRANKLIN is a bold, unscrupulous, foolhardy creature, of the Bowery-boy stamp, whose ambition seems to be to try how often and how bitterly he can insult Free-State men, and escape hanging. This he calls expressing his sentiments.

The Free-State men, themselves, are divided upon any and every question except the Lecompton Constitution. In favor of that instrument, I have yet to hear a man say a single word. It is condemned by universal consent, and the idea that it can ever become the organic law of Kansas is admitted not for a moment by anybody. There may be some who secretly are in favor of that instrument,—but not even FRANKLIN himself has the hardihood to say so,—and if there are any such they are so few that they see the utter uselessness of attempting to maintain it. Nevertheless, those who are the most honest and sincere, in the Free-State Party, are divided as distinctly as though the line had been drawn and deeply marked by years of antagonistic action,—one party being conservative and the other radical,—one wing, for instance, advocating the line of policy which you have always maintained, and the other wing indorsing and sustaining the Tribune's policy of uncompromising hostility to everything but the Topeka Constitution and its legitimate successors. These—let me not be misunderstood—are the general features of the division,—though there are gentlemen, who usually act with one or the other of these wings, who do not indorse fully all the views of even their own faction. It would be unjust to doubt the honesty of either,—for the adherents are evidently in earnest,—though nearly all of them have become so intensified by the events amid which they have lived during the last two or three years, that it is difficult for any of them to look with confidence or toleration upon any man who differs from themselves in the least degree.

Just at this time the conservative and the radical elements in the Free-State Party take issue upon the Leavenworth Constitution—the conservatives objecting to the negro suffrage clause, and the provision which seems to compel the promiscuous association of white and black children in the common schools. Still many of the conservatives will vote for the Leavenworth Constitution under protest,—because it is deemed important as a means of fighting the Lecompton instrument, which is so odious that all else is forgotten when the alarm is sounded for a rally against it. But FRANKLIN and his insignificant band of coworkers in mischief-making have availed themselves of this opportunity, and seized upon the occasion to excite the Irish rabble under their influence against the radicals—the real object being to effect serious and fatal divisions among the Free-State men.

General LANE, with all his ultraism, has a remarkable hold upon and influence over the Free-State masses, notwithstanding very many, even of the radicals, totally disapprove his course as unwise, and calculated to do serious harm to the cause which he espouses. He arrived here on Wednesday morning, having traveled thirty-five miles, from Lawrence, during the night, on horseback, for the purpose of addressing the people in favor of the Leavenworth Constitution. The meeting was held the same evening, in front of the Times office. Not less than two thousand persons were present, and the windows of the surrounding buildings were filled with ladies who came to hear the discussion. General LANE having, in his announcement, invited the opponents of that instrument to meet him in a review of its advantages and objections. The General opened the ball, but had not proceeded far when he was interrupted with demoniac yells, hisses, groans, &c. He proceeded steadily, however, and got through, although much of his speech was lost in the confusion.

THOMAS EWING, Jr., followed, eloquently and ably presenting his feelings against the Free Suffrage clause at some length. His remarks were cheered by the Conservatives, and also by the company of two or three hundred Irishmen, whose prejudices had been highly excited against the "voting niggers." It soon became apparent that they were being urged on by some Pro-Slavery ruffians, prominent among whom, as the evidence clearly shows, was FRANKLIN, notwithstanding that he denies it. Of course, it was their policy to applaud EWING, which they did with a will, until he declared that, notwithstanding his objections, in view of all the circumstances, he would vote in favor of the Leavenworth Constitution. This was received with groans, and other demonstrations of disdain—the friends of the Constitution meanwhile having refrained from any participation in the excitement. After EWING came Mr. H. P. JOHNSON, a slaveholder, who brought many slaves into the Territory when he first immigrated. Mr. J. sustained the Leavenworth Constitution throughout, and proceeded to reply to Mr. EWING's argument, when he too was greeted with hisses, yells, and groans from the disturbers, among whom FRANKLIN was distinctly recognised, patting the rioters upon the back, and encouraging them to the work. Their conduct chagrined and disgusted the conservative Free-State men quite as much as the Radicals, the former of whom appear to have been, in no degree, responsible for their disgraceful conduct.

The interruption had now become quite unendurable, and the spectators from neighboring windows soon perceived a movement in the crowd, which, to use initiated in Kansas history, was significant. A few minutes later a prominent Free-State man took his position in a conspicuous place, crying out in a loud tone, "Rally, Free-State men, to the vindication of the Freedom of Speech! All who sustain it fall in, form a line on this side!" This invocation, or words to the same effect, was responded to with the greatest alacrity. Drawing their revolvers, which gleamed ominously in the bright moonlight, the Free-State men, in less time than I take to relate it, were arrayed in compact lines, stretching across the entire width of the street. Those who were not participants in the events of the night, quietly withdrew to one side, leaving the ruffians standing by themselves in a body, opposite those whose ire they had provoked. For an instant they stood their ground, as if disposed to contest it. The word to "forward" was given by a spontaneous leader of the Free-State men. The latter advanced rapidly towards the disturbers, who, with a howl of mingled rage and fear, turned and fled before their pursuers, like a herd of frightened deer.

No shots were fired nor more force exerted than necessary to disperse the rioters, so far as the mass of them were concerned. But now the blood was up, and the indignation of a strong party of the Free-State men concentrated itself against FRANKLIN, to whose machinations the whole disturbance was traced and ascribed. Search for him was made, and had he been found then, an hour later would have seen him swinging upon some convenient gibbet. Fortunately for himself he was quick enough to elude pursuit, although in his hasty retreat he lost his hat, and dared not pause to recover it, so closely was he followed. He was found at last, but meantime cooler counsels were invoked by a few of the more conservative men to save him from death. In the face of clearest evidence of his complicity in the disturbance, and of his precipitate flight, he protested an alibi, and brought friends to sustain it, so that at last he was permitted to escape the popular vengeance. That he will yet die a violent death, however, if he remains in this community, it would be safe to predict, for the excitement against him is intense, and his foolhardy insolence is well calculated to light the fatal spark at any hour.

It is not for me to pass judgment for or against an outbreak like this, but no man who spends a little time here, seeing and conversing with the men who were for months ground under the heel of "Border Ruffian" despotism, learning the facts from eye-witnesses, and sifting their statements ever so carefully, can wonder, now the Free-State men have the power, that they are easily disposed to deal terrible retribution when new provocation is afforded by the now impotent oppressors.

Messrs. MCCULLOCK and POWELL, the Utah Commissioners, started from Fort Leavenworth at 3 o'clock this afternoon, for Salt Lake City, with their ambulance train, and an escort of about a dozen men. They have allowed themselves 35 days in all to make the trip, but if no accident befals them they will be apt to make several days' better time, for MCCULLOCH is a "fast" man in his way, and will not loiter on the journey. Since my former communication upon the subject of this Commission my impressions are confirmed that the Commissioners are authorized to present considerations to BRIGHAM YOUNG, to induce him to depart from this Continent to some of the islands of the sea. Mr. BUCHANAN expects the Sandwich Islands and Sonora to be Americanized and annexed at no very distant day, and therefore is decidedly opposed to Mormon emigration in those directions. In addition to Formosa and the Phillipine Islands as suitable points of refuge for the Mormons, the Island of New-Zealand is also mentioned. It is not improbable that the Commissioners will propose that the Federal Government shall aid BRIGHAM in the transportation of his followers to their new home, if they will agree to go.

We have intelligence in town to-day of further difficulties in the neighborhood of Fort Scott. This place is in the extreme southeast corner of the Territory, near the Missouri line, and the Pro-Slavery men in that vicinity are again at work maltreating, plundering, and maiming the Free-State settlers, so that the latter are leaving, in considerable numbers, to return to the East, having been robbed until they are no longer able to remain there, even to change their location. If this sort of thing is not stopped by some means there will be bloody work yet in retaliation. Already many of those who participated in the Border Ruffian outrages a year or two ago, have been made to taste the cup they prepared for others. The result is a panic among the Pro-Slavery men in Free-State neighborhoods—now comprising almost the entire Territory—in consequence of which not only the invaders who came to vote, but the Pro-Slavery men who came to settle permanently, have nearly all left. It is extremely doubtful whether there are five hundred Pro-Slavery men now in Kansas.

RELATIONS OF POLITICAL PARTIES—FEELING OF THE FREE-STATE MEN.

LEAVENWORTH CITY, Kansas Territory, Monday, April 26, 1858.

Since the hour of my arrival in this Territory it has been my constant effort to ascertain the exact sentiment of its people upon political questions. To this end I have visited its largest towns, which have been the theatres of the greatest excitement in the past, and traveled over the more settled districts. I have prosecuted the investigation on board of steamboats and stage-coaches, in hotels, and in the cabins of humble settlers. I have sought the farmers in their fields, away from the cities—the mechanics in their shops—the masses everywhere when opportunity for a word presented itself. I think, therefore, that I have obtained the material upon which to base a clear, independent, and dispassionate opinion of affairs, although it must be confessed that every man here is so intense in his feelings upon political matters that it is exceedingly difficult to discriminate between unvarnished truth and highly colored exaggerations whenever he attempts the narration of facts.

In my letter of yesterday's date I presented a view of the divisions of sentiment in Leavenworth. That view applies equally to the entire Territory, except that outside some of the river towns, and in the neighborhood of Fort Scott, there is no remnant of a party having the least disposition even to embarrass the Free-State men. There are almost no Pro-Slavery men in Kansas to-day. Border-Ruffian oppressions have been so fearfully retaliated by Free-State men since the latter were first aroused to armed resistance, that the Pro-Slavery minority have been compelled to flee the Territory which themselves had made too hot to hold them. The question of Slavery here is settled and forever,—no matter how many Lecompton Constitutions are attempted to be enforced. You of the East do not fully realize this fact, or did not when I left New-York for Kansas. Slavery has no foot-hold, and can never get it here; nor can the Lecompton Constitution ever be carried into operation, even if passed by Congress,—that is to say, by some means or other, peaceably or forcibly, be the consequences what they may, the people will never consent that it shall have any practical effect. It may stand as a law for a brief period, but it will be utterly dead and inoperative.

But although the people of Kansas stand as one man, almost, against Slavery and Lecompton, they are seriously divided otherwise. Among the evils which always follow civil war, none is more prominent than the consequent spirit of intense intolerance. Kansas has passed through a civil war, not half the horrors of which have yet been told, and her private animosities and intolerance can hardly be conceived in a community like your own. This adds an unfortunate bitterness to all their political differences. Scarce a man here is able to concede a particle of honesty to the neighbor whose views differ from his own in the slightest degree, and confidence in each other is destroyed the moment the least variance is discovered. You will readily perceive what, then, must be the state of feeling of these men against CALHOUN, CLARKSON, HENDERSON, JONES, PATE, TITUS and all others who are considered to have been among their Pro-Slavery oppressors, or towards any who are suspected of sympathizing with them. I do not believe that CALHOUN's life would be safe a day even in this commercial center, and, naturally, therefore, the most conservative of the Free-State strongholds. CLARKSON, the Postmaster, who went to Washington with the bogus election returns, and labored zealously for the success of Lecompton, has never dared to show his face here since. He came up the river two or three weeks ago, but was met at the boat by a friend, who warned him of the danger of landing. He accordingly passed on to Weston, whence, it is understood, he has returned to Washington.

It will take a long while for these and similar feuds to die out. It is clearly a mistake to suppose that this state of feeling is confined to the politicians. Far from it. General LANE and others play upon the sentiment, perhaps, for the advancement of personal ends; but they do so because they know that hardly a man who has lived and suffered in the Territory during the last year or two, is devoid of it. I do not mean that all of them are ready to follow the ultra blood and thunder men to any extremity, in all their schemes and plans; but there are few of them whose memory of past wrongs to themselves or their neighbors does not inspire them with intensest hatred of the oppressors, and of Slavery, in whose name the oppression was waged. It would be a curious and interesting study to trace the rapid growth of positive Abolitionism in Kansas among men who came here ultra conservatives, National Democrats, or even the actual holders of slaves—the germ having been planted and nourished into vigorous life by the very efforts made to "wipe out" the Free-State sentiment.

Nor is all this to be wondered at, when you recall to mind the numberless outrages committed in the name of Slavery,—the marching of armed hordes into Kansas from Missouri, with "Death to the d—d Abolitionists," "No quarter for Free-State men," inscribed upon their banners; the destruction of printing presses; the lynching of clergymen; the murder of COLLINS, DOW, BARBER, BROWN, PHILLIPS and an hundred others; the undisguised sympathy of the Federal officials with the Border Ruffians; the prostitution of the Judiciary to the same foul system of outrage and wrong,—the arrest and imprisonment of large numbers of prominent and highly-respectable Free-State men on frivolous and false charges of horse stealing, &c., and a host of other equally ingenious devices availed of to wear out the spirit of the Free-State men, and induce them to abandon the Territory to ATCHISON and his whisky-drinking marauders. The graves of the martyrs, conspicuous upon "Pilot Knob," a high bluff back of this city, are ever in sight—sad mementoes of those trying scenes; and the mutilated forms carried about the streets by others who lost limbs in the resolute defence of their liberty or property against lawless violence are continually present to keep alive the exasperation which such events were well calculated to excite.

Passing along the street the other day, in company with one of the "Conservatives," (who, by-the-way, bear about the same relation to a New-York "Conservative" as gunpowder to saltpetre,) he pointed out to me a fine looking man with amputated arm—the brother of the PHILLIPS who was murdered by a band of ruffians under the notorious FRED. EMORY. The story has been told before, but, as a sample case, may profitably be repeated, as I get the facts from a friend whom I formerly knew in the South as a Pro-Slavery man and a National Democrat. PHILLIPS is represented to have been a quiet, peaceable, but firm and indomitable Free-State man. He came into the Territory early, as a permanent settler, and erected for himself a neat and commodious cottage-house on a rise of ground half a mile back from the river, opposite PARRY's Hotel, a well-known Free-State House. His only offence was his avowal of Free-State sentiments in this then Border Ruffian stronghold, and the fact that he had given testimony relative to the first Missouri invasion. He was warned to abandon his property and leave, but paid no attention to the mandate. A few days afterwards he was seized on a public street, while engaged in superintending the erection of a building, hurried to the river side where a skiff was in waiting, carried across the river into Missouri and to Weston, where he was tarred and feathered, sold at auction by a negro, and then set loose. His wife, an intelligent and educated lady, followed him when he was seized, begging and imploring his assailants to release him, until, all her entreaties proving unavailing, she sank senseless to the earth. Since her husband's murder she is bereft of reason—is to day in an insane asylum, living out her long night of horrible despair. What wonder that the women of Kansas have become almost demons of war, whenever an open issue is made between their husbands or brothers and the legitimate successors of those whose ruffian hearts were thus insensible to a wife's appeal!

Nothing daunted, PHILLIPS returned to his hearthstone. His noble spirit scorned an assassin's revenge. But meeting one day one of the band of miscreants who had assailed him, he calmly reminded him of the advantage he had taken of him, told him that he would not emulate his example, and then offered the wretch his choice of a pair of pistols, (which PHILLIPS then held in his hands,) with a proposition that they should settle accounts there and then. If I remember aright, this man was named LYLE. The latter, cornered by the cool desperation of the man he had so deeply wronged, asked and obtained leave to go after his own pistols, to which he was more accustomed—but he never returned to fulfill his appointment. Sometime subsequent, an organized body of forty men, under FRED. EMORY, armed with revolvers and rifles, surrounded his house, upon the pretence of searching it for Free-State arms, and called him out. He came to a window opening upon the front porch of his cottage, when the ruffians leveled their weapons upon him and commenced firing. PHILLIPS saw at a glance that the time for his sacrifice had come, but maintained his calm intrepidity. His brother, to whom I have already referred, was shot down by his side, the ball having shattered his arm. Resolved to sell his life dearly as possible, PHILLIPS now came forward, fired upon his assailants, killed one of them, severely wounded another, and fell himself, riddled by a volley from the entire party. To this day some of the bullets may be seen embedded in the frame-work of the window in which the martyred hero stood when fired upon. Loved and respected as he was, do you wonder that the sight of PHILLIPS' grave or of his brother's mangled arm rekindles anew the hate of their friends? Do you wonder that such scenes as this have almost sealed up the fountains of humanity, and schooled the Free-State men into intense austerity and bitterness?

It will take time to soften the asperities born of the past, and humanize again the noble men and women here whose hearts have been steeped in bitterness and woe, until their very natures seem changed. Nothing will tend so much to produce this desirable result, as the absolute death of the Lecompton Constitution; for that is looked upon as the embodiment of all the iniquities of the past—the long concocted point of outrage—the concentration and consummation of all for which the Ruffians have struggled, and in resistance to which the Free-State martyrs fell. When the Lecompton swindle is dead, every Federal office-holder in the Territory who has been mixed up in the least degree with these partisan strifes should be promptly removed; for their retention by the National Administration is necessarily considered to be a public indorsement of their acts; and thus the irritation of the people is individually kept alive and augmented rather than allayed. The notorious EMORY, for instance, the leader of the murderers of PHILLIPS, has, since that deed of horror, been rewarded with one of the best offices in the Territory. Unless I mistake the feeling of abhorrence with which he is looked upon, if Mr. BUCHANAN does not remove him soon, the grave-digger will, for in an unguarded moment he will find upon his track some avenger of blood as remorseless as the friends whose scorns of a tender woman's tearful entreaties drove her reason from its throne. I write not of what ought to be, but of what is, and I would not give a straw for EMORY's life when convenient opportunity offers in which to sacrifice it upon PHILLIPS' grave.

It is rumored here that CLARKSON has been superseded, and that Judge CATO has resigned. Could Mr. BUCHANAN but witness for a moment the satisfaction with which these little gleams of a better dawn are hailed here, LECOMPTE and every other federal relic of the Border-Ruffian epoch would be unceremoniously withdrawn. Such an act would do more to restore law and order here than a regiment of troops. At present the people have no confidence in the Judiciary, and will not appeal thereto, feeling assured by past experience that the Free-State man has not an equal chance there, and, consequently, preferring to rely upon the strong hand. But my letter is becoming too long, and I must defer until my next some observations and suggestions in relation to the political future of this Territory.

GEN. LANE AND HIS POLITICAL POSITION —THE FREE-STATE CONSERVATIVES.

LEAVENWORTH CITY, Kansas Territory, Monday, April 26, 1858.

General "Jim" LANE, as he is usually styled, has for some time past been considered the head and front of the ultra Free-State men of Kansas—notwithstanding he made a speech in Missouri, when first on his way to the Territory, in favor of the establishment of Slavery here. In considering the probable future of the Free-State Party, it is desirable to consider his relations thereto, and the position which he holds. LANE is a man apparently about 45 or 48 years of age, of the average height, lean and spare in figure, with a rather good-natured and quizzical, but decidedly homely, face. He is an agitator beyond all question. This his best friends admit. He is a politician, ambitious of personal advancement, and looking forward even to the highest honors. That he foments discord and difficulty for the purpose of advancing his own interests—and tha he is a low, whisky-drinking toper—is religiously believed in the East. The latter article of this faith certainly is utterly unfounded—for the General has never been even a frequent partaker of spirituous liquors, since his residence in Kansas, and is now a teetotaler and member of the order of Good Templars. He denies, too, that he is an agitator, claiming that he never counseled force except on the defensive.

It is evident, however, that he has not a conservative idea. Whether he intends to foment trouble or not, he always is found among those who counsel the most radical measures—those who refuse participation in elections, and prefer to settle the Lecompton difficulty by the sword, rather than the ballot. It is, perhaps, unfair to say that he does this from wrong motives, for he may be in honest error. Certain it is that there are in Kansas a large number of intelligent and worthy gentlemen, who—intensified and embittered as I have heretofore explained—can not understand or appreciate the wisdom of any policy except that which absolutely ignores the Territorial Government and laws, and makes an absolute revolution against the Federal Government. LANE moves with these,—though some of them, at least, indignantly repudiate the idea of following his lead. It is generally conceded that LANE has a hold on the masses of the people which is certain to make him one of the United States Senators from Kansas, provided any are elected within the next year. This even his Free-State opponents concede. The fact is another evidence of the earnest depth of feeling which the attempt to force the Lecompton Constitution has stirred.

But there is a very large conservative element in the Territory, nevertheless, and if the Administration will but encourage it by removing from federal office the Jeffries of Kansas, and the murderers of Free-State men, that element will develop itself very rapidly. While they remain, it is up hill work,—for while the people expect of JAMES BUCHANAN that he will give them Pro-Slavery officers, they burn with rage at sight of officials who have been offensively prominent in their oppressions. Even among the radicals there are many who secretly regret LANE's ultra and factious course. This conservative element is already beginning to take shape and form. The negro-suffrage clause in the Leavenworth Constitution will probably be made the occasion for a trial of its strength. The conservatives look upon that clause as unwise, fearing that the prejudice it excites among laboring men other than those from New-England, will have a tendency towards the ultimate formation of a Democratic Party with strength enough perhaps, to expel free negroes altogether from the State. The subject will be warmly discussed at the Free-State Convention which meets at Topeka on the 28th inst. to nominate State officers under the Lecompton Constitution,—and a division of the Free-State men into two distinct parties there, one Radical and the other Conservative, is inevitable, unless some terms of accommodation are arranged.

The term "Free-State" is deemed entirely too broad as the designation of a political party, and it is more than probable that the Republican flag will be hoisted at Topeka. The leaders generally concur in the necessity of having party lines here more distinctly defined,—for, under the term "Free-State," many men who are not counted true to the cause of Free Labor are enabled to get into the party church, sometimes deciding its issues. The Minneola Capital speculation is ascribed by some to this sort of influence. It is the radicals who propose now to fling out the Republican banner,—but the conservatives are generally quite ready to enlist under it at once, provided a platform can be agreed upon involving a submission to the people, at an election, of the questions whether or no the negro-suffrage clause of the Leavenworth Constitution shall stand,—and whether separate provision shall be made for the education of white and black children. If this is done, the Republican Party here will comprise nine-tenths of the people, and the Leavenworth Constitution will be adopted by an overwhelming vote. If it is not done, there will be a split at Topeka—the conservatives will form another Free-State Anti-Negro-Suffrage Party, and will labor to defeat the Leavenworth Constitution before the people. My impression is that, although they will poll a strong vote, the Constitution, even in that event, is likely to be adopted.

The people of Kansas are not anxious to come into the Union at all, at present. The greater portion of them are very poor,—having been impoverished by the civil discord which has reigned here, or expended all their little means in making their locations, settling their preëmption claims, and making the improvements upon their farms indispensable to subsistence. If they could be relieved of the unjust Judges that infest the Territory, all but the office-seekers and their immediate friends would prefer to remain in a Territorial condition for some time longer, with Uncle Sam to pay expenses. The proposition understood to have been made in the Committee of Conference in Congress, submitting the Lecompton Constitution to a vote of the people, and, if it be rejected, providing that Kansas shall remain in a Territorial condition until she has sufficient population to entitle her to a Representative in Congress—will be more satisfactory even than the Crittenden-Montgomery amendment. This will suit a large class for another reason, to wit: that the postponement of an election for United States Senators a year or two would tend to shelve Gen. LANE altogether,—for radicalism is certain to be followed by reaction soon as the asperities of the past soften sufficiently to permit less excited and therefore wiser counsels to be entertained. In this respect Gov. ROBINSON stands much better than Gen. LANE,—because while the election of the former as one of the Senators is also conceded now, his chances are not likely to lessen under the reaction.

What is to be the result if Lecompton passes in its unadulterated form? By what process is the stern and united determination of this people that it shall never go into practical operation, to be made effectual to that end? These interesting queries raise another issue upon which there is a decided difference of opinion among the Free-State men. The radicals are utterly opposed to qualifying under the instrument, preferring to wipe out every Pro-Slavery officer who attempts to qualify under it. Indeed, I am inclined to believe that every such officer is already marked,—and that a plan for their destruction, if they provoke the blow, has been considered if not matured. The idea is, that if there are no officers to carry the Lecompton Constitution into effect, it will fall, as a matter of course, and that then the Leavenworth Constitution can be at once put into operation.

I do not believe this plan will be carried out in any event. If a Free-State majority have the Legislature, it would seem scarcely necessary,—and mercy will triumph over justice so far as concerns the Pro-Slavery officers. No conscientious scruples, however, will stay the hands of those disposed to strike down those who seek to carry the Lecompton swindle into operation,—for this outraged people have fully made up their minds that men who willfully and knowingly can lend themselves to the work of usurpers under a free Government, have forfeited their lives, and deserve to die the death of traitors by any patriot's hand. It is mercy alone, and not justice or conscientious considerations which will save them. Besides, the Lecompton Governor elect will convene the Legislature at the Fort and thus make it very difficult for the ministers of popular retribution to reach their victims, and if the Free State men failed to qualify as Legislators and to elect Senators, the Governor would promptly appoint a pair of Pro-Slavery men to take the seats. The non-qualifying policy is so full of difficulty and embarrassment now, and would be so certain to provoke another contest in Congress, that I do not believe it will be persisted in.

The Conservatives are in favor of qualifying under Lecompton if it is adopted, and the Free State men have a majority in the Legislature. This done they purpose, if necessary, to purge the body until they have a two-thirds vote in it, to overhaul the election returns, prove the frauds by virtue of which the Pro-Slavery Governor obtains his certificate, oust him from his seat, and so take entire possession of the Government to hold it in statu quo until the people's Government is ready to supersede it. Upon this issue the Conservatives are stronger, probably, than in any other, and they will be likely to maintain and carry their position, unless the more violent programme shall be so suddenly precipitated as to leave no time for consideration and discussion, which I do not apprehend. It will be seen that if the conservative programme is carried out there can be no further trouble, for the Free State men will have everything in their own hands. Some very good men among the radicals manifest undue sensitiveness about accepting their dearest rights through the slightest technicalities of the Lecompton Constitution. To their excited minds it would seem to be the acceptance from the enemy as a boon of what they suffered so much in contending for as a right. They seem to forget that by their invincible resistance to oppression, inspiring their friends in Congress, they have won an essential victory, defeating the whole scheme of fraud, when they compelled CALHOUN to issue the certificates to a Free-State Legislature, thus conquering their political rights. To refuse now to accept the fruits of this victory—the surrender of Lecompton entirely into their own hands—certainly is akin to the conduct of a General in the field, who having worsted his enemy, refuses to accept his tendered sword, and to take possession of his conquered forts. The following extract from a letter received by a gentleman in this city a day or two since from Governor ROBINSON briefly sets forth the doctrine of the conservative Free State men upon this point:

"If the Lecompton Constitution be approved by Congress, and the occasion requires it, the members of the Legislature, under that instrument, will be held responsible: First—That no Pro-Slavery Senators are allowed to go to Washington with certificates of election from that body or the Governor. Second—That the Lecompton Constitution is not put into operation and run by the Pro-Slavery members of the Legislature; and, Third—That all this responsibility can be discharged peaceably. For this purpose, they were elected—namely, that we might rid ourselves of the infamous document without war—and they had better think twice before they conclude to neglect the duty intrusted to them, to join men whose occupation will be gone when strife in Kansas is ended. The people—7,000 of them—'took possession' of that Government on the 4th of January last, and put it in their hands for the very purpose of having it peaceably and honorably displaced; and this they can do in thirty minutes, and by the stroke of a pen. What would history have said of the men of the Revolution if, when they had taken possession of all the Colonial Governments in America, they had ignominiously surrendered them again to the British by non-action, at the instigation of a few men whose trade was war? And what would the rank and file of the army at Valley Forge have said to such a proposition? Let there be one life lost, one wife widowed, one child orphaned in consequence of the neglect of the members elect to do the duty for which they were elected, and all Christendom outside of Kansas and the Insane Asylums will hold them responsible."

Again, there is great doubt whether the act of the Legislature, calling the Leavenworth Convention, is a valid law, in consequence of General DENVER's having failed to either approve or reject it. This presents a formidable pretext upon which the United States Senate would object to the admission of Senators chosen under it. In conclusion, upon this branch of the subject, let me say that while the apparent majority of the people is, to-day, against the conservative policy thus foreshadowed, I fully believe that it will be sustained. The elements at work for it are silent in their operation, but subtle and powerful. Independent of all this, the chances are that those who favor violent measures will fall to act until the critical moment is passed, and so suffer the case to go against them by default. That occurring, the alternatives remaining will be submission to the Border Ruffian Government, by non-action, or its practical extinction through legislative action. It ought not be difficult to tell which they will choose.

I have thus endeavored to give you a fair, impartial and disinterested view of parties in Kansas, and the issues upon which they are divided. I think you will see that men here are hardly to be judged by the standard found true and just in an Eastern community,—that it is outrage and oppression, and not fanaticism or malice, which have brought the people of Kansas into a mental condition which to you seems so like fanaticism. They have suffered much, and thus been driven into radicalism such as themselves would have deemed madness before they entered upon the Pioneer's life. They are good men, brave, generous and true. Were they less so, they had never maintained their stand here in behalf of principle,—but would have returned to the refined civilization of their early homes, to enjoy its peaceful pleasures. They have prostrated the hydra-headed monster whose fangs at one time seemed fastened firmly upon this fair and sunny land. Slavery is forever prostrate, come what may; and when the victors have cleared away the more conspicuous evidences of the fray, and had a little time to smooth their ruffled tempers, the Union will show no more intelligent, kind and benevolent race of men than the successful Revolutionists of Kansas. RUMORED SKIRMISH WITH THE MORMONS—ARRIVAL OF ARMY OFFICERS—FREE-STATE NOMINATIONS IN KANSAS.

ST. LOUIS, Tuesday, May 4.

The Leavenworth Ledger says that a dispatch from Utah reached the Fort on Monday last, asking for a reinforcement, and giving an account of a skirmish between a guerilla party of Mormons and a body of troops under Capt. ANDERSON, in which three-fourths of the combatants were killed on both sides. A company of light and heavy artillery, and a company of dragoons were immediately dispatched from the Fort. The statement is discredited here.

The Leavenworth Herald, of the 1st, tells the story as follows: "News reached the Fort by Express that a band of outlaws and a small detachment of troops under Capt. ANDERSON, had an engagement in the Little Osage country, that one soldier was killed and that Capt. ANDERSON was wounded in the leg, and had his horse killed under him. A battery of four guns and a company of dragoons were dispatched to the scene of the difficulty." The statement from the Leavenworth Ledger, already telegraphed, grew out of the above, probably by the substitution of Camp Scott for Fort Scott.

The following officers of the United States Army have arrived here: Gen. Smith, Gen. Harney, Col. Johnson, Major Maera, Major Chapman, Captain Humphreys and Captain Pleasanton.

The Free-State Convention to nominate State officers, met at Topeka, Kansas, on the 28th ult. H. J. ADAMS was nominated for Governor, Col. HOLLIDAY for Lieutenant-Governor, and M. J. CONWAY for Congress.

THE TAYLOR AND BRENNAN LEASE—THE EVENING JOURNAL INJUNCTION—DEATH OF THE HON. SAMUEL DICKSON.

ALBANY, Tuesday, May 4.

The Taylor and Brennan lease of the ground opposite Washington Market, with the piers and water rights, is for one year from the 24th of April at $5,000 per annum, payable quarterly in advance.

The State Officers appeared by counsel before Judge GOULD, this morning, in answer to the injunction issued yesterday, to prevent them making a contract for a State paper: it appearing that the injunction had been disregarded, Judge GOULD refused to hear any argument until the State Officers had purged themselves of contempt of Court. The hearing was adjourned till 4 P. M., in order that affidavits of the service of the injunction, and proof of its violation might be before the Court.

This afternoon, Mr. REYNOLDS, counsel for the Evening Journal, moved to amend the order of injunction, by including the Atlas and Argus with the State officers, and take the case into a full Court. Mr. PORTER opposed the motion on the ground that under the law of 1851 no injunction could be obtained against the officers or their employés without eight days' notice. The Court reserved its decision.

The Hon. SAMUEL DICKSON, a member of the last Congress from this district, died last evening. His death was the result of spinal injuries received by missing his chair, and falling when about to sit down while at Washington.

Judge GOULD suspends further action in the contempt case until the above point is decided by the Court.

The American Medical Association.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 4.

The American Medical Association met at the Smithsonian Institute at 11 o'clock this morning. The Convention organized by calling Dr. LINDSLY to the Chair. Nearly every State in the Union was represented. The delegations are large, and include one from California and one from Paris. A nominating Committee was appointed, consisting of one from each State represented. Other committees were also appointed.

Dr. D. M. REESE, of New-York, offered an apology for having recommended for office a practitioner not recognized by the Society.

A spirited debate ensued on a similar apology made by Dr. BRYAN, of Philadelphia.

Dr. EVE, of Tennessee, retired as President of the Association, and Dr. LINDSLY, of the District of Columbia, took the Chair.

Four hundred and six Delegates are already in attendance. To-night they were received at the President's House by appointment.

Philadelphia Municipal Election.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, May 4.

The municipal election to-day passed off quietly. The result will probably be close, as the opponents of the Administration supported the People's ticket.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, May 4—11 P. M.

Flying reports from several Wards indicate heavy Democratic losses on the vote of 1856, when VAUX was elected Mayor by 4,500 majority.

PHILADELPHIA, 11½ P. M.

The returns now indicate the election of Mr. HENRY, the people's candidate, for Mayor.

PHILADELPHIA—12 o'clock, midnight.

The returns from fourteen Wards out of twenty-four, give HENRY 4,173, and VAUX 2,584. The Democrats concede they are defeated. The victors are parading the streets with lighted torches and music.

PHILADELPHIA—1 A. M.

Five other Wards add 367 to Mr. HENRY's majority. At the last Mayoralty election, the remaining Wards gave majorities for VAUX; but, should they do so now, they cannot overcome the present opposition majority.

The Acquittal of Simon Bernard.

We have already published a full abstract of the trial of Dr. BERNARD, in London, for complicity in the Orsini murders of the 14th of January last. The trial was completed on Saturday, April 17.

After Chief Justice CAMPBELL had completed his summing up, the prisoner arose, and in a most emphatic manner expressed himself as follows:

"I protest that the balls that have been brought by GEORGE to Brussels are not the Birmingham balls. I could have brought evidence into Court that would have cleared me, but I did not, because I would not compromise others. I am not a hirer of assassins, for RUDIO declared, on his trial at Paris, that he had himself asked to go to ORSINI. I have conspired, and I always will conspire—it was my duty—it has ever been my duty to crush despotism everywhere. I had nothing to do with it more than anybody here—we will crush despotism, but never, never, will I be a murderer."

These expressions, coming so unexpectedly, and uttered with such vehemence, created great excitement, and at their conclusion an attempt was made to applaud, but it was immediately put down.

The Jury retired to consider their verdict at twenty-five minutes to 3 o'clock. After an absence of half an hour, it was announced that the Jury were coming into Court, and the greatest excitement prevailed, the general opinion being that a verdict of guilty could not have been agreed upon in so short a space of time, and that, consequently, the verdict was one of acquittal, or else that the Jury required to put some question to the Court upon the legal bearing of some portion of the evidence. After a painful suspense of some minutes, it appeared that the Jury had not yet come to any decision. Three-quarters of an hour passed in increased suspense, when precisely at four o'clock, the stentorian voice of Mr. HARKER was heard calling silence; the Jurors had taken their seats, the Judges had reëntered the Court, the prisoner once more stood at the bar, the Jurors had once more, and for the last time on this trial, answered to their names; there was a deep and oppressive silence, which was broken by

Mr. CLARK, the clerk of the Central Criminal Court, inquiring whether they had agreed to their verdict

The Foreman, in a clear and emphatic tone: We have.

Mr. CLARK: How say you, gentlemen of the Jury, is the prisoner at the bar, SIMON BERNARD, guilty of the felony and murder whereof he stands accused, or not guilty?

THE VERDICT AND THE SCENE IN COURT.

The Foreman, in a loud and emphatic manner, said: We find the prisoner Not Guilty.

The announcement of the verdict was the signal for a burst of tumultuous cheering, not only from the galleries, but from the body of the Court, and in which some of the members of the bar even joined. The ushers tried to restore order, but without any effect; cheer upon cheer succeeded each other without any interruption, and the Judges, who were standing to receive the verdict, appeared perfectly amazed.

The prisoner, who had for some time endeavored to make himself heard, at length, when silence was partially restored, exclaimed, "That verdict is the expression of the truth. I am not guilty of the crime of which I have been accused. It is an honor to the English jury to return such a verdict, and it shows that they are determined in England to crush tyranny wherever it exists."

Mr. SIMON then inquired of the Attorney-General what course he proposed to take with regard to the other indictment against the prisoner?

The Attorney General said that this indictment would be supported by precisely the same evidence as had been adduced in the present case, and after the verdict that the jury had given, he did not think he ought to proceed with the second charge.

Mr. SIMON then suggested that an acquittal should be at once taken.

The Attorney General said he believed this was not the course uniformly taken, but he had no objection to it.

The prisoner was then arraigned upon the second indictment, which charged him with being an accessory before the fact, and also as a principal in the murder of EUGENE RIGUEUR, and the prisoner was called upon to plead.

He did not at first seem to understand the nature of the proceeding, but on Mr. SLEIGH going up to him and stating that it was only a matter of form, the prisoner said in a firm voice "I am not guilty."

The Jury were then sworn.

The Lord Chief-Justice addressed them, and said that as no evidence was offered by the prosecution, all they had to do was to say that the prisoner was not guilty.

The verdict was accordingly recorded.

The greatest excitement had prevailed in the Court during these proceedings, and when the second verdict was returned the cheering recommenced, and there was a general waving of hats and handkerchiefs in the galleries. An immense number of persons had assembled in the Old Bailey to hear the result, and they took up the cheering. The Judges were evidently quite disconcerted, and they made a hasty retreat from the Court—the Lord Chief Justice not even dismissing the Jury, or paying them any compliment for their long and patient attendance. The verdict, however, seemed to give satisfaction to almost every one, and when the Jurymen got into the street they were loudly cheered.

DR. BERNARD'S RELEASE—HIS SPEECH TO HIS FRIENDS.

From the London Star.

Dr. BERNARD was liberated at a quarter to four yesterday afternoon, on bail, given in full court at Westminster, in his own recognizances for £1,000; Mr. PETER STEWART, of Liverpool, for £500, and Dr. EPPS, of Bloomsbury, for the same amount. Dr. BERNARD left the Court with his solicitors, Messrs. LEVERSON and SHARR, amidst much cheering. On leaving Westminster Hall, Dr. BERNARD and Mr. LEVERSON were obliged to take a cab to escape the hearty congratulations which were almost too warmly tendered by the crowd. M. BERNARD has been in custody for more than two months, having for his companions two men—one charged with garroting, the other with scuttling a ship. His health has not been affected by his imprisonment, and he appears to have the highest confidence in the verdict which will be given upon the forthcoming trials. Wherever he went he was most enthusiastically greeted, and even on leaving Westminster Hall the whole rank of cabmen pressed forward to have the honor of conveying him from the spot. He speaks in high terms of the kind treatment he experienced from the authorities at Newgate, but bitterly complains of the conduct of a detective, who, he states, told him that a letter might be sent to his friends at the time of his arrest without being previously read by the Police, but who, nevertheless, copied the letter, contrary to his promise, after it left BERNARD'S possession. Last night Dr. BERNARD was present at Wyld's Reading-rooms, Leicester-square. He was received with very warm congratulations, and made a speech on the occasion of his health being drunk. He said—"Gentlemen, I thank you for these demonstrations. You do not drink my health, but the health of your own country. You drink to liberty. But my mouth is shut until after my last trial. I must not speak; yet I must express my gratitude to you and the jury who tried me. I relied firmly on a jury of Englishmen. I must speak no more. I thank you from my heart." This speech was received with cheers. Three cheers were then given for Mr. EDWIN JAMES, and three cheers for the Jury. The scene was one of great excitement.

OPINIONS OF THE ENGLISH PRESS ON THE VERDICT.

From the London Times.

Not since the Irish Rebellion of 1848, has there been any State trial approaching in importance the case of SIMON BERNARD, who was acquitted on Saturday last of complicity in the murderous attempt of the 14th January upon the Emperor NAPOLEON. Indeed, the trial, which is just over, has a general and international interest, which is wanting to the inquiries respecting domestic treason or sedition. It was preceded by discussions, the heat and vehemence of which have alarmed Europe, and the Ministers of a great foreign Potentate were led away by the circumstances which produced it, to use, and permit others to use a language which may be disregarded, or may be forgiven, but which cannot be forgotten. It is also not to be denied, that the Emperor of the French, as well as our own Government, looked forward to a successful prosecution, as a means of smoothing away many difficulties. To the Derby Cabinet, which had ousted its opponents by bringing in the Conspiracy bill, a verdict of "Guilty" would have given the opportunity either of proving that no legislation was necessary, or of legislating under the sanction of a judicial decision. The French Government, or rather its sagacious chief, has also notoriously desired such a proof of the good will of England, as would, in the eyes of continentals, be involved in the punishment of a Republican Conspirator. Such a conclusion of the long disputes between the two countries would have been gratifying to the self-esteem of the French Government, "so severely wounded by the events of the last three months; and we may say, without arrogance or assumption, that the spectacle of an English Court passing sentence on an accomplice of ORSINI would have given a moral strength to the Imperial throne. That the political and national instincts of the Jury had something to do with the decision it would be affectation to deny; but we think that their verdict was only what was to have been expected in any similar case. All the circumstances of the trial show how much political feeling has been mixed up with the question which the Jury had to try. The experience of Mr. EDWIN JAMES induced him to turn his defence of the prisoner into a tirade against the empire, its chief, and its principles, and the conclusion of this harangue was received with cheering and clapping of hands. The result of all these influences was that the Jury took advantage of a slight defect in evidence to return a verdict consonant with their political feelings, and to express their dislike of the very principle of the prosecution. On their judgment we are not called to pronounce an opinion; we only think that it was to be expected, and that any further proceedings against the prisoner may as well be abandoned. NAPOLEON III. may remember that his companions, VAUDEY and LAITY, were acquitted in 1836, though seized with arms in their hands; the verdict of the Old Bailey Jury is, therefore, not without a precedent even in his own

OPINIONS OF THE FRENCH PRESS.

From the Paris Patrie

BERNARD will now have to appear before the Court of the Queen's Bench and answer to the charge of conspiracy. But, according to the English law, the crime of conspiracy, having murder for object, is treated in the same light as an ordinary [conspiracy, and is only liable to a fine or an imprisonment of short duration. It will be remembered that it was precisely after having pointed out the terms of this law that Lord PALMERSTON declared in the House of Commons that the punishment was too lenient for the prevention of criminal conspiracies, and brought forward his Conspiracy Bill. The fate of this bill is known. Whatever modifications may be introduced, at some later period, into the English legislation, the case of BERNARD can only be tried by the actual laws; we have, therefore, confined ourselves to pointing out briefly the new stage into which the proceedings have now entered.

From the Constitutionnel.

No honest man in France or England can doubt the guilt of BERNARD. We will only say to those of our neighbors who desire the maintenance of good relations between the two countries, that if the speech of Mr. EDWIN JAMES, filled with gall, with calumnies, and with insults against the Emperor, the people, the army, and our institutions, should unfortunately be circulated in France, in the cities, the barracks, and the country towns, it would be difficult for the Government, with the best intentions, to stay the effects of public indignation.

From the Univers.

The English Jury has acquitted SIMON BERNARD; the English people have welcomed this result with cheers; the English Judges have identified themselves as closely as possible with the scandal of the acquittal, by admitting him to bail. The scene was complete and cynical. During the trial MAZZINI published a pamphlet, reproduced by several journals, which, in its insolence towards the Emperor, and in its threats, surpassed the most revolting writings hitherto produced by the refugees. If the English Government had not desired this result, it follows that the Times rules public opinion. If it had desired it, then is the Times the organ of its opinions. In either case, France has obtained an insight into the secret thoughts of England. As we are neither the sponsors nor champions of modern civilization in general, and of English civilization in particular, we shall say no more. A question, which may be termed the "question of assassins," rises between two powerful and friendly nations; one of these two nations solves the question to the detriment of the other, and in favor of the assassins. This is the last and most characteristic trait of European policy in the nineteenth century. Let us be sincere and add that in the present state of things the infamous huzzas raised by the people in the London law court are preferable in our eyes to the starched compliments with which the municipality of Dover overwhelmed on the previous day the frank nature of the Duke DE MALAKOFF. These compliments, in their show of good feeling, were doubtless very English; but the huzzas shouted around SIMON BERNARD betray the intimate feelings of England.

Finances of Great Britain.

We have announced that Mr. DISRAELI, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, made his financial statement in the House of Commons on the 19th ult. A more extended analysis of his speech than the brief telegram published in our impression of Monday, will be found interesting. After commenting on the change which the commercial prosperity of the country, and of the people also, had undergone towards the close of the last year, Mr. DISRAELI said that many changes had taken place since the last Budget in the commercial position of the country. The American crisis had reacted on our own commerce and caused a series of failures, which, whether the number was considered, or the amount, exceeded any within their memory. Our exports, which had been rapidly rising for a long time previously, fell off regularly since the commencement of the crisis. Then came a resumption of confidence, capital was now abundant, and the prices of the main articles of life were cheaper than at this time last year. Still, though the general condition of this country was sound, they were not justified in expecting that rapid recurrence of speculative spirit which had done much for the Exchequer. After these observations he came to the estimates for the current year. He estimated the charge for the funded and unfunded debt at £28,410,000. There was a decrease on this item, compared with last year, of £150,000, partly owing to the paying off of Exchequer Bonds. He condemned the practice of resorting to the exploded sinking fund system to pay off loans which should be paid out of the surplus revenue of the country. They had to meet a deficiency of £3,990,000, and they had no surplus revenue. Under these circumstances he thought they ought to repeal the act authorizing this war sinking fund, or else suspend it until the Exchequer Bonds were paid off; and this latter one he was prepared to recommend, for he thought it would not be fair to place these debts on the consolidated fund. This would leave £2,500,000 to be dealt with. The right honorable gentleman then argued strongly against resorting to the income tax as a means of making up the deficiency, thinking that a tax on income was not justifiable as a permanent source of revenue. It could only then be by resorting to a new tax that the deficiency could be met, and however disagreeable this might be, the parties opposed to it must remember that, directly or indirectly, they profited by the reduced income tax. He proposed to raise a portion of the deficiency by an equalization of the spirit duties. They had been equalized with respect to Scotland, and Scotland had been a gainer by the transaction. A differential duty existed in favor of Irish spirits, which he proposed should now be given up, and from this they would gain £500,000. He expected to be thus enabled to make up the deficiency, but it was desirous to have something in the shape of surplus, and this he hoped to derive from a tax of one penny on each check drawn on a banker. The result would be, he believed, about £300,000 which he thought would render any further taxation unnecessary for the year. The deficit of the £3,990,000 would be thus made up—by spirits, £500,000; by postponing the war sinking fund, £1,500,000; and the £2,000,000 Exchequer Bonds, he proposed should be liquidated by payments of £1,000,000 in each of the years 1862 and 1863. He hoped by that time that the income tax would have ceased, and that there would be a large surplus of revenue over expenditure. The honorable gentleman resumed his seat amidst general cheering from all parts of the house.

The Refugee Question in Sardinia.

IMPORTANT SPEECH BY COUNT DE CAVOUR.

The sitting of the Sardinian Chamber of Deputies, on the 16th of April, was almost entirely taken up with Count DE CAVOUR's important speech on the refugee question. After adverting to the accusations which had been brought against the Cabinet, viz: that it had yielded to foreign pressure, and neglected to uphold the national dignity, Count DE CAVOUR replied to some of the observations made by MM. DELLA MARGHERITA, RATAZZI and REVEL, especially reproving the latter for having introduced personalities into a question of such high moment. He then proceeded to sketch the policy of the Government since the accession of his present Majesty VICTOR EMMANUEL II. After the battle of Novara, two courses were open for choice: Piedmont might either have renounced all the plans of CHARLES ALBERT, or she might still cherish them without at the same time breaking existing treaties. The first course was certainly the easiest, but it necessarily entailed the abandonment of all hopes of future progress, of all the splendid traditions of the House of Savoy, of the unhappily but glorious heirloom left by CHARLES ALBERT. VICTOR EMMANUEL, therefore, chose the other course, and called MASSIMO D'AZEGLIO to power. That statesman at once labored, first, to show that Italians are capable of being governed constitutionally, and, secondly, to advocate the cause of the other Italian States by diplomatic influence. Before M. D'AZEGLIO quitted the Cabinet, the uprightness of the Piedmontese Government had been recognized by all the Governments of Europe. His successors followed the same policy, and the Crimean war presented a favorable opportunity for giving that policy a greater development. Sardinia took part in that war, not only because there was justice in the cause, but also to increase her fame, and to acquire a greater right to defend the interests of Italy. This she did in the Congress of Paris. "Still, it is urged," continued the orator, "that our participation in the war was sterile, and our sacrifices useless. I do not deny that we acquired no material advantages, but we obtained immense moral results. Our nation has grown immensely in the esteem of other nations, and it has been proclaimed in the face of Europe that the condition of Italy requires powerful remedies if the peace of the world is to be lasting. Now, if any truth can be drawn from modern history, it is this: that no great revolution in the political state of the world has ever occurred without its having been previously adopted by public opinion. And if we have obtained this moral change in favor of Italy, we have gained more than if we had won several victories. If is true, however, that our policy was not devoid of danger. We could not uphold the principles of CHARLES ALBERT without provoking the resentment of a power whose policy is directly opposed to ours. This is a serious fact, requiring much consideration; and to obviate all danger from that quarter, we have made the system of forming alliances one of the cardinal bases of our policy." Here the count adverted to some of M. BROFFERIO's arguments, all founded on the supposition that Piedmont was strong enough to act single-handed, and refuted them one by one. "Those who are of M. BROFFERIO's opinion," he continued, "say: 'We want no alliances with Governments; our ally is the revolution.' But they are madmen! madmen to think that a revolution threatening the principles of society can be favorable to the cause of liberty in Europe; madmen, who know not its surest effect would be the destruction of all liberty and our return, perhaps to a mediæval state of society; well-meaning madmen, who love revolution more than they do Italy!" (Loud cheers.) The Count then stated that the foreign relations of Piedmont with France and England were extremely satisfactory, and then gave an account of the diplomatic correspondence which arose from the attempt of the 14th of January last. The French Government sent a dispatch on the subject to the Piedmontese Government. It was couched in very moderate language; it was not officially replied to, because, according to diplomatic usage, a dispatch is not a note, and needs no reply. But a confidential answer was returned, which, when communicated to the Committee, appeared to it perfectly in accordance with national dignity. It was simply this: that we were ready to do anything in our power to prevent the repetition of such crimes, but that we thought our laws as they were met the exigencies of the case. At the same time it was observed that all restrictions laid upon refugees would be but palliatives, and that the real remedy would be found in preventing the renewal of those events which caused men to flee from their country. The Hon Minister then referred to the acquittal of the Ragione, and declared that it was that induced him to introduce the bill now before the House. He then sketched the history of political assassination from 1849 down to the present time, and stated, to the astonishment of his hearers, that, after the attempt of January, he received an intimation from the country which most jealously upheld the principle of the right of asylum, to the effect that political sects were more than ever intent upon attempting the lives of sovereigns, and that the King of Sardinia was one of the intended victims! "What was to be done?" continued the Hon. Minister. "Were we to reject such advice? Would mere measures of police be sufficient to arrest the hand of an assassin? Would not the nation, when it came to know the truth, rise indignantly against us, and drive us from our seats? It became, therefore, our imperative duty to present the bill; and I believe that no one can now accuse us of having yielded to foreign pressure. We are sure of one thing, and that is, that our conscience does not reproach us for a single act, a single word, that has not been inspired by a warm love of our country, a strong desire of promoting its interests, increasing its glory, maintaining its dignity unimpeached, and keeping the tricolor intrusted to our hands free from every stain, both on the field of battle and on that of diplomacy! (Loud and prolonged cheers on all sides.)

After this speech, Count REVEL and another Deputy spoke on some personal matters, and the debate was adjourned to the following sitting.

Particulars of the Fall of Lucknow.

From the Bombay Standard, March 24.

Lucknow is now in our possession, and our troops will speedily have every stronghold in Oude in their hands. The heaviest portion of our bloody task is completed, and we are now exchanging the attributes of destroyers and avengers for those of reconstructors, restorers and protectors. We mentioned two mails back the general movement in advance between the 3d and 6th. It is within the past six days that letters have given details beyond the 7th. The force under General OUTRAM, which at this date crossed the Goomtee, consisted of WALPOLE's division with thirty pieces of field artillery, and 2,000 cavalry under Sir HOPE GRANT. Though under the fire of the enemy's guns at the Martiniere and other positions, no effective opposition was offered. Two pontoon bridges had been erected beforehand in the direction of Beebepore. The Commander-in-Chief and Staff were present on the occasion. General OUTRAM now entered on a very careful and leisurely reconnoisance of the country between the bridge and villages of Chinnut. He was closely watched by the scouts hanging like clouds on our left flank. Leaving the village on the left, they advanced along the Fyzabad road for about three miles, intending, after they had selected their encamping ground, to make a detour to the right, and reconnoitre Maryon, the old Lucknow cantonments, where the enemy were said to have two divisions. Before this could be accomplished we were attacked by the enemy, who were driven off with considerable loss. We suffered but little, but Major SMITH, of the Queen's Bays, was amongst the slain. On attempting a further movement, a second attack was made upon us. It was now too late in the day. The men had been since three in the morning under arms, when it was resolved to rest for the night; the force bivouacked on the battle field which proved so disastrous on the 30th of June.

Early next morning (7th) the enemy again made their appearance, but after half an hour's fighting were driven off, multitudes being cut up by the 9th Lancers. OUTRAM now took possession of the Chukkur Kothi or King's race house; but as this post was commanded by the enemy's guns it was not meant to be maintained until after a breaching battery against the city had been established. In the afternoon a further attack was made upon us with the usual results.

On the 8th the Commander-in-Chief visited OUTRAM, to see how matters went on. The further reconnoissance was now committed to Gen. HOPE GRANT, who made a wide sweep to the northeast, but encountered no resistance. In his absence the enemy attacked OUTRAM in great force. They were driven off, but not without considerable loss on our side.

On the 9th Sir JAMES OUTRAM carried the Chukkur Kothi with all the buildings and gardens around, effectually turning and enfilading the enemy's first great line of works. Our principal casualties occurred in pursuing the Sepoys through dark rooms and passages, when they saw our men approaching, and shot them down before they were aware of their danger.

On the 10th OUTRAM's division, with the exception of the Artillery, enjoyed an exemption from their labors, to leave Sir EDWARD LUGARD time to push on from the other side of the town. Our heavy guns kept thundering on the city. The Martiniere had been stormed the previous day by the second division under the gallant officer just named. On the 10th Banks' house and the Residency were captured in the face of a very obstinate resistance. He was now close on the Begum's Palace and Hurbut Gunge, within 200 yards of the Kaiserbagh. Here, amongst others, Capt. HODSON, who had distinguished himself with the Guide Corps all through the campaign, fell, mortally wounded. While these operations were in progress a grand durbar was being held by the Commander-in-Chief for the reception of JUNG BAHADOOR. Before the ceremony was half ended, Capt. HOPE JOHNSTONE rushed in, announcing LUGARD's and OUTRAM's triumphs. The state formalities were broken through at once, and everybody shook hands with everybody, and by common consent the pomp and circumstances of the ceremonious visit were, amidst the terrible realities of victory, postponed to a future day.

On the 11th, while the force on the Alumbagh side kept pressing on, two columns, one under OUTRAM and WALPOLE, moved out, sweeping to the right of the cantonments as far as the Ghan Ghaut, near Moosebagh, and returning by the iron bridge. The left column pushed directly for this latter structure; our front was considerably advanced. The enemy are said to have lost 400 or 500. On our side Captain COOPER, of the Engineers, Captain MOORSOM, her Majesty's 52d, and Lieutenant M'DONALD, of the 93d, fell. The loss of the second of these officers is peculiarly lamented. He had just called four Rifle Volunteers to clear out a house from which thirty Sepoys were firing on our column. He had led the storming party, who were successful, when he was shot through the head. In less than ten minutes thereafter every one of the garrison lay dead.

On the 13th the Commander-in-Chief took the Imambaragh, close to the Kaiserbagh, when a heavy fire was directed on the last-named building, both from Sir COLIN CAMPBELL's and Sir JOHN OUTRAM's forces. The whole was captured about 9 o'clock in the morning of the 13th after a severe contest of some hours.

On the 14th OUTRAM was occupied in carrying the portion of the town betwixt the iron bridge and the residency. The people were now streaming from the city in a northwesterly direction, making, as it was supposed, for Rohilcund.

On the morning of the 13th Brigadier CAMPBELL, with a strong force of Cavalry and Horse Artillery, was ordered to proceed from Alumbagh in pursuit; heavy guns with infantry were to follow, while Sir HOPE GRANT was dispatched from the further side of the river to intercept those endeavoring to escape eastwards.

A little leisure was now afforded to examine the havoc that had been made. Nothing could be more terrible or astonishing. The strength of the enemy's works would have been considered incredible had we not seen them. They were literally shivered to pieces by our shot and shell. The Kaiserbagh was pierced everywhere, and was absolutely strewed with musket balls.

Thus far our letters extend, stopping where the electric telegraph closed on us a week ago. We now fall back on the casual notices supplied to us between the 14th and 21st, at which date our latest tidings close. It had been ascertained, at the dates already quoted, that Mrs. ORR, whose infant had shortly before been sent into camp from the districts, where it had been kept concealed, and Miss JACKSON, had been removed from the Queen's Palace and placed, through the influence of MAUN SINGH, in a private residence beyond the power of the Durbar or reach of the mutineers.

On the 16th both bridges were secured, and the troops advancing occupied the Muchee Bhawun and Great Imambaragh. Large bodies of the enemy had crossed the stone bridges before they could be attacked by Sir JAMES OUTRAM. A Goorkha division the same evening captured the enemy's position in front of the Alumbagh—seven guns falling into their hands.

On the 19th the last post held by the enemy was stormed, and they themselves pursued by the cavalry, when multitudes were cut up. The city was now completely in our possession; 117 guns had been seized, and not a single post left in the hands of the rebels to be defended.

Amongst the auspicious events of the day were the recovery of Mrs. ORR and Miss JACKSON. They had been rescued by Captain MCKAULL and Lieut. BOORER, of Artillery, with a small party of Goorkhas, by whom they had been conveyed to the camp of JUNG BAHADOOR. They had latterly been taken charge of by MEER WAJEE ALI DAROGAH, by whom they had been respectfully and kindly treated.

The triumphs of war had hardly closed when the labors of peace were entered on. It had been one of the great blunders of the Revenue Commissioner, Mr. MARTIN GUBBINS, that he had, shortly after the annexation, begun to press the great landholders and tenants under the Crown for the production of their title-deeds, and establishment of rights to their estates. In a country which had been in a state of anarchy for half a century, position or property had been acquired as they were maintained, by force or fraud almost alone, and we had to choose betwixt securing the people, by shutting our eyes on much previous wrong, or annexing the estates and converting their holders into powerful mortal enemies. The bulk of them permitted us to pursue our arrangements without interfering, and felt disposed to give us their support, had we only assured them of their possessions. They were slow in rising against us even when mutiny broke out, and not till they were assured on all sides that the English Raj was at an end, that the King of Delhi sat securely on his throne, that the Mohammedan dynasty was about to be restored, did they join the ranks of our enemies. Their conduct ever since then has, in its clemency and moderation, strikingly contrasted with that of the other rebels. MAUN SINGH, the chief of them all, has long been anxious to make terms with us, but it was deemed wise to keep him at a distance until Oude was at our feet. When the city was at length fairly invested, its days numbered, and its fate irrevitable, his submission was accepted, and he and others of the great Crown tenants invited to repair to the camp of the Commissioner.

The most stringent orders had been given, meanwhile, to avoid indiscriminate violence and slaughter. The panic-stricken citizens, who had been assured by the Durbar and mutineers that the whole population of Lucknow was doomed to one indiscriminate slaughter, were endeavoring to make their escape in all directions, when met by the artisans, laborers and cultivators, of whose villages OUTRAM had taken charge, loud in their admiration of our kindness and forbearance. They said that not one village or hamlet had been injured, unless such as had afforded refuge to the rebels; that our soldiers had interposed to protect the sick, the weak and the aged, the women and children, from injury. The town-people began to take heart, and to return to their houses, and resume their ordinary occupations. The Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief, still in the thickest of the strife, are making municipal arrangements—organizing a garrison of moderate size for Lucknow—preparing, with the remainder of the troops, to scour the Doab and Rohilcund, once more infested with the enemy, and to operate against Bareilly, Calpee, Jhansi and Kotah, which we have hitherto been compelled, from want of men, to leave alone.

So far from there being the shadow of a shade of foundation for the slanders heaped at home on the cruelties of our men, their conduct has throughout been distinguished, in an extraordinary degree, by that humanity which is the natural characteristic of the brave. Private soldiers have risked their lives in searching through the burning ruins of villages from which the enemy could only be driven by fire, to save those from destruction otherwise unable to escape. When strayed children have been picked up by them, they have been carried about, nursed, and cared for by them, as if they had been their own. That the terrible vengeance which has been, and is being, executed on the mutineers, should have frequently descended on the heads of the innocent, was a thing inevitable, unless the guilty were suffered to go free. With Englishmen only was it possible to have been so little frequent as it has been.

THE SCIENTIFIC ASSOCIATION.

FOURTH DAY OF THE BALTIMORE SESSION.

Disputed Claims to the Discovery of the Permian System in America—Its Existence Questioned—Sharp Encounters, Lively Sallies and Personalities—A Treat for Geologists—A Pleasant Pleasure Party.

From our Special Correspondent.

BALTIMORE, Monday, May 3, 1858.

Saturday was a brilliant day for the Association. The morning meeting was the most interesting of the session thus far, while the excursion of the afternoon was deliciously fresh and novel in its display. There was a spice of personality about the meeting that gave it zest, while the discussion in the Zoological Section was a treat equally agreeable to the scientific and the popular parts of the audience. A large number of new members were proposed at the opening of the general meeting, upon which the vote was taken separately. Professor H. N. ROGERS suggested, when the job was about half over, that it would be better to vote them in a lump. Professor CASWELL assured the gentleman that it would have been finished by that time if Professor ROGERS had not interrupted. But, said Professor ROGERS, a principle is always worth the trouble of enunciating it, and if members are to be admitted on the recommendation of two men, let us hereafter do it with as little time as possible. The rest were lumped in.

Professor STEINER announced that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad would dead-head members home. He did not add that the other railroads, when invited to extend the same courtesy, had consulted their finances and could not afford it.

Professor LOOMIS (not of New-York) suggested that the Standing Committee report an authorized abbreviation of the name of the association. Lieutenant HUNT seconded it with pleasure. If, instead of writing out its awkward full-length title, such an abbreviation for instance as Am. A. A. S. be authorized, it would be a great convenience to those who were obliged to make frequent reference to its transactions.

Prof. W. B. ROGERS hoped that great care would be taken in the duplication of the letters, as it made a sad difference if the S should chance to be doubled instead of the A.

Prof. HENRY said the admission to membership was so cheap it was unwise to facilitate or encourage the disreputable habit in members of attaching the letters indicating membership to their names.

Prof. SWALLOW said that if gentlemen who had so many honors were willing to dispense with some of them, it was no reason why those poorer in titles should be denied the privilege.

Prof. LOOMIS said he had lately seen in a gentleman's library the transactions of the Society elegantly bound and lettered on the back, "Proceedings of the American A. S. S."

Prof. PIERCE said that another society of some notoriety already used the initials proposed—they should be too independent to encroach on preëmpted claims.

Prof. LECONTE, of Philadelphia, moved to table the whole subject.

Bishop LYNCH, of South Carolina, approved the abbreviation for reference' sake, and moved the reference to a Special Committee. Finally it was referred to the Standing Committee.

The Chairman announced that the Physical Section would meet again in the room behind the screen.

Prof. PIERCE hoped not. What was said in this room was heard with equal ease in that, and though it would be pleasant to hear the proceedings of both Sections at once, it was extremely inconvenient to persons who happened to be provided with only one brain.

A DEBATED QUESTION IN GEOLOGY.

In Geological Section, which organized by the appointment of R. W. GIBBS, of Columbia, S. C., as Chairman for the day, two papers upon essentially the same subject, and the debates that they provoked, occupied most of the morning, Prof. SWALLOW remarking that since the politicians had at last lain Kansas down, the scientific might with propriety take it up, read the first, a paper on the Rocks of Kansas, its conclusions being based for the most part on the fossil collections of Major HAWN. In the southeast corner of the distracted Territory the rocks were Lower Carboniferous. The rest of the eastern section was the coal measures—but containing few important beds of coal, (being geologically above the Missouri Coal Measures.) Next west was the Permian system—[at which announcement the Section pricked up its ears.] Next further west, a few fossils indicated the Triassic, next the Cretaceous. Will you permit me only half a dozen lines of hard words—the table is so valuable and suggestive—I must copy it. One section carefully prepared by HAWN gave the following as the order and depth of those rocks:

No. 1. 200 ft. Quaternary.	No. 4. 820 ft. Permian.
No. 2. 75 ft. Cretaceous.	No. 5. 1,070 ft. Coal Measures.
No. 3. 420 ft. Triassic?	No. 6. 170 ft. Mountain Limestone.

Economically, these Permian beds are very important. The gypsun they contain will enable the farmer to convert the vast sandy plains of Central Kansas into the most productive regions of the West, and supply the commercial demands of the Mississippi Valley which are now met by importation.

There has been some misunderstanding, said Prof. SWALLOW, in relation to the Permian fossils of Kansas. Since the first announcement of the discovery of Permian rocks in Kansas, in the March number of the Journal of Science, several communications have appeared in rapid succession, showing the existence of that formation in various parts of the West. His paper, declaring the discovery of several well-known Peruvian fossils in the Valley of the Cottonwood, in Kansas, was read in the St. Louis Academy of Sciences, on the 22d of February. On the 2d of March Messrs. MEEK and HAYDEN announced the discovery of Permian fossils, by Major HAWN, on the Smoky-Hill Fork, in Kansas, and by Dr. COOPER, near Hilena, in the same Territory, in the Albany Institute. On the same day their announcement was read to the Academy of Natural Sciences, at Philadelphia. On the 8th of March, Dr. B. F. SHUMARD announced the discovery of Permian Rocks, by Dr. G. G. SHUMARD in the Guadaloupe Mountains, in New-Mexico. Dr. NORWOOD's letter showing the existence of Permian Rocks in Bureau, La Salle and Henry counties, in Illinois, was read in the St. Louis Academy on the 5th of April. In May of 1857, Mr. WORTHEN placed in Professor HALL's hands fossils supposed to be carboniferous, but which proved, on comparison, to be of Permian type. It is but just to state in this connection, said Professor SWALLOW, that, so far as I know Mr. MEEK first discovered the Permian character of the Kansas fossils, and communicated to Major HAWN his impressions on the 8th of Sept., 1857, and also mentioned the discovery to some friends at the Smithsonian Institute on the 17th of Jan., 1858, and communicated to the same by Professor LEIDEY on the 16th of March. Major HAWN frankly declares, too, that his first impression that the rocks in question are Permian, were due to Mr. MEEK.

Professor SWALLOW had stirred up a hornet's nest. Geologists had heretofore doubted—nay, generally denied—the existence of the Permian system anywhere in North America. But here its existence was claimed, and within a year five different men were claiming the merit of the astounding discovery.

Mr. MEEK—a wonderfully meek-looking man, one of Professor JAMES HALL's assistants at Albany—a man whose wife and children and all his thoughts are fossils in which he is growing to be a notable authority, in a very low voice confessed that he thought Professor SWALLOW formerly had done him injustice as to his priority of claim, but with his present statement he was amply satisfied.

Prof. HALL said that he had been represented as claiming priority of suggestion as to the Permian character of the disputed fossils. He thought he saw evidences of a conspiracy to make him father of a claim which he had never made, and then elaborately to disprove its justice. At this point the confusion became utterly confounded. Mr. MEEK—whose difficulty of hearing made it hard for him to learn how his fame was being handled—was explaining to his Chief (in the New-York Palæontological Department) and to the Chair. Mr. WOODMAN, of Albany, was reading a copy of the minutes of the Albany Institute meeting, wherein Prof. HALL unqualifiedly indorsed and complimented Mr. MEEK for his discovery. Two or three others were reminding each other when and where Prof. HALL had claimed it incidentally for himself. Mr. MEEK was protesting that his discovery was not owing to any consultation with or suggestion of Prof. HALL's. Dr. GIBBON was assuring the Chair that all this was disorderly. Prof. H. N. ROGERS was suggesting that in this and all future conflicts of claims, each party should put his claim in writing. Prof. HALL was earnestly asseverating that he was called on to disclaim an assertion which he never made; he claimed nothing, in any shape; he was unable to discover why there was such a persistent attempt to provoke him to controversy. The Chair was rapping and calling to order—and the audience were only uneasy that in the confusion they could not hear half what was said.

Finally, Professor H. N. ROGERS, of Glasgow, got the floor, and proceeded to knock the stool of honor from under the feet of all the parties who were so vigorously contesting which should stand upon it. He wanted to know on what amount of field evidence the conclusion was adopted that we had yet a Permian system of rocks. It was so unlikely to be expected that geologists would continue to doubt it until overwhelming physical and geographical evidences were added to the fossil evidences.

Professor SWALLOW detailed them, such as they were, but confessed they were not strong.

Professor HALL explained upon what grounds he had pronounced certain fossils to be of the Permian type, and yet was not disposed to announce, for that reason, that the Permian system occurs in our country.

Professor H. N. ROGERS urged our young Western explorers to be cautious how they affix a European nomenclature to a little known stratum of fossiliferous rocks in America. The Permian of Russia was a sort of second edition of the Carboniferous, but there was an evident break in the Russian series, which accounts for its existence. No such break occurred here, and if the system existed, there was nothing to account for it. America, with her unbroken series, was entitled to give the law.

Mr. A. H. WORTHEN read a paper on the Permian rocks of Illinois, which substantially coincided in these last views.

Mr. MEEK said that all he meant to claim was that the rocks he called Permian were precisely parallel to the Permian of Europe.

Mr. HALL said it was certainly more natural to group them as Permian than elsewhere.

Professor HITCHCOCK said the discussion had really been a treat to him. He had often been told that there were Permian rocks in the valley of the Connecticut, but he had never succeeded in finding one. To hear the observations of men who had been handling them freely was a gratification which he must publicly acknowledge.

Prof. SWALLOW, having been quizzed sufficiently, would now ask a question himself. If these rocks were not Permian he would ask Professor ROGERS, of Glasgow, what they were. The fossils were unmistakable—they were Permian if there were any Permian—where would Prof. ROGERS have him put them?

In his grief, answered Prof. ROGERS, let the gentleman fall back upon the Palæozoic.

No, replied Prof. SWALLOW, if we are to declare our independence of European nomenclature, let us reject all their terms, and manfully, as the geologists of Pennsylvania (the ROGERS brothers) did. We are sent to report our observations to men who willfully, perpetually, almost maliciously, quarrel with our terms, though they are the terms that pass everywhere current in science. We are between Scylla and Charybdis—a double Scylla it is on our side. [Laughter, as the allusion was understood to be to the ROGERS brothers.] We bring you the rocks which in England and Russia you call Permian; but here we must not call them so! If we have any rocks parallel to those European rocks, these are they. And until the fathers give us a nomenclature, we tyros must be permitted to use the best—the only ones we have.

At this point the keen encounter closed. Unintellig

COURT CALENDAR—WEDNESDAY, May 5.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.—Part I.—Nos. 448, 496, 498, 60, 500, 502, 504, 506, 510, 512, 516, 518, 520, 522, 524, 526, 528, 530, 532. Part II.—Nos. 447, 433, 437, 441, 443, 449, 425, 421, 2073, 89, 57, 459, 463 to 481, all odd numbers, 139, 483, 485.

SUPERIOR COURT—Nos. 354, 382, 44, 1397, 273, 210, 394, 378, 407, 483 to 491, 493, 495, 499 to 506, 509, 508, 511 to 516, 518 to 521, 523 to 530, 532 to 537, 539 to 542.

COMMON PLEAS.—Part I.—Nos. 402, 923, 1120, 53, 1141 to 1144, 1146, 1147, 579, 112, 796, 1159. Part II.—Nos. 1056, 286, 1132, 1135, 1138, 1139, 1037, 885, 798, 1149, 1153 to 1155, 1157, 1158.

Decisions in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

BIRD—SUPPLIES—MEANING OF THE WORD PORT—STATE LAW.

John D. Concklin vs. The Steamboat Sylvan Shore.—This was a libel filed to recover the price of lumber furnished by the libelant to F. J. A. & L. H. Boole in July, 1856, and applied by them in building the steamboat at Mott Haven, in Westchester County. The steamboat was built under a contract between L. H. Bool and the claimants, the New-York and Harlem Navigation Company, by which the hull and joiner work were to be completed before Aug. 17, and to be delivered at a wharf in New-York City. The hull of the boat was taken to New-York Aug. 22, and after receiving her machinery and making a trial trip or two she returned to Mott Haven Oct. 25, and on Nov. 10 began her regular trips between Harlem and New-York. On Nov. 5 the builder was paid the contract price in full. The lumber was not sold to or for the vessel, and the charges on the libelant's books were to the firm alone, not naming the boat. This suit was commenced Nov. 25, 1856. No specification of lien was filed in the County Clerk's Office of Westchester or New-York.

Held by the Court—That a lien was indisputably created in favor of the libelant by the purchase made by the builder, if the materials were obtained on the credit of the vessel, whether he procured them in the character of owner or builder, subject to the condition expressed in the statute of filing a specification within ten days after leaving the port.

That the term "port" used in this class of enactments has never been understood or employed in a technical or restricted sense, as limited to ports of entry, free ports, or those bearing any special qualification. These municipal lien laws especially are adapted to occasions which would naturally occur in places along the shores of our inland waters, wherever a vessel may need repairs or supplies, and the word "port" would naturally be used in its most familiar and popular sense.

That the second section of the lien law of the State fixes the county within which the lien is created as the place where legal proof of it shall be recorded, and thus indicates unmistakably that when the vessel leaves such county she departs from the port where the privilege accrued to her, and it is the same where her removal in point of distance is merely nominal, in going for instance into a port in the county of New-York as to one in Richmond or Suffolk County.

That the libelant not having filed his specification within ten days after the departure of the vessel from the port, his right of action was barred in this case.

Libel dismissed with costs.

For libelant, Messrs. Beebe, Dean and Donohue; for claimant, Mr. Benedict and Mr. McGowan.

BOTTOMRY BOND—LACHES—RIGHT OF SHERIFF TO INTERVENE.

Joseph Eneas vs. The Schooner Charlotte Minerva.—This was a libel filed to recover the amount of a bottiomry bond, executed on June 27, 1856, by the master and owner of the British schooner Charlotte Minerva, to secure a loan of $4,000 made to him by the libelant, by which that sum was to remain as a lien and bottomry upon the vessel, at the premium of five per cent. and lawful interest for the voyage. The condition of the bond was that the loan and the premium should be paid at or before the expiration of 350 days after the arrival of the vessel at Harbor Island, Bahamas. She arrived there on July 12, 1856, after which she made two other voyages to New-York, and one to Philadelphia. The last one to New-ork was about the middle of August, 1857. On the 8th of September she was seized by the Sheriff of New-York, under an attachment against her owners. On Sept. 16 the libel in this case was filed, and the Marshal seized the vessel under the process, without opposition on the part of the Sheriff, and the vessel was sold by order of this Court, its proceeds being less than the amount of the bottomry debt. Judgment was obtained in the action in the State Court, and execution issued. The Sheriff intervened in this action, claiming that the proceeds of the vessel are bound by the judgment and execution of the State Court, and should be applied first to satisfy it.

Held by the Court—That the Sheriff is a competent party to intervene in this action upon his official interest and possession in respect to the vessel, and claim the proceeds in the Registry of the Court. (The Panama, Olcott's Rep., 343.)

That the bond, though anomalous and singular in its provisions, yet in substance constitutes a maritime hypothecation of the vessel for a particular voyage and a specific period beyond its termination, and the money so loaned has been put in risk under the contract.

That this lien is paramount to and supersedes the attachment of the Sheriff.

That the remedy in this Court might be lost for want of definiteness and certainty in the bond, or by laches of the bottomry creditor.

That a bottomry loan is equally valid when made on the lapse of a definite period of time, as if on the expiration of a specific voyage.

That the loan need not be for the necessities of the vessel, or cargo, or voyage. When the bond is made by the owner, he may employ the money at his discretion, and pledge the ship for its security, the lender retaining his lien so long as the ship bears the risk.

That there was no laches in the delay of a few weeks after the libelant's right of action was matured, which can impair his remedy. Nor does the prior attachment of a junior lien creditor supersede his right.

Decree for libelant for $4,000, with the marine interest thereon to Aug. 15, and interest at 7 per cent. from that date and costs.

For libelant, Messrs. Benedict, Burr and Benedict. For the sheriff, Messrs. Larocque and Barlow.

JURISDICTION—EXECUTORY CONTRACT.

Rafael R. Torices vs. The ship Winged Racer.—This was an action to recover damages against the ship for the non-performance of a charter from this port to China, for the transportation of coolies to Havana. The libel alleged the execution of the contract by the owners of the ship, and that they have since wholly refused to perform it, and prayed damages to the amount of $28,951.

The owners excepted to the libel.

Held by the Court.—That the agreement set up was an executory contract only, entered into on land, and never commenced to be performed on water, and therefore does not come within the jurisdicion of the Court.

Decree for exceptant, but with leave to the libelant to amend his libel within twenty days on payment of costs.

For libelant, Messrs. McCulloh and Ridgway. For claimants, Messrs. Stoughton and Harrington and Judge Beebe.

Before Judges Hall and Betts.

Both the Circuit and District Courts were opened in the one Court-room, this morning, and a large convocation of the bar were present. Some consultation took place as to the best way of arranging the business of the two Courts so as not to conflict with each other. There was some talk of postponing the business of the District Court till next term, and giving up the Court-room to the Circuit. The Marshal, also, proposed to him a temporary Court-room in Tammany Hall. After some discussion, the Judges finally announced that for to-day Judge HALL would hear a case or two in the Circuit Court which had been set down specially for to-day; that to-morrow the business of the District Court would be taken up and continued, with the exception of next Tuesday and Wednesday, until Wednesday of week after next, when the Circuit business would be taken up and continued through the term, unless there should be some criminal business to be done in the District Court the last week of term.

Judge HALL then took up the business of the Circuit Court for to-day.

OBSTRUCTING A CUSTOM-HOUSE OFFICER.

The United States vs. Timothy Desmond.—This was an indictment for obstructing a Custom-house officer in the discharge of his duty.

It appeared from the evidence that the defendant was a gatekeeper on Pier No. 44 North River, at which the steamer Kangaroo was lying; that the Custom-house officer, Mr. Munroe, was on board the ship, and, hearing a confusion at the gate, went there, and found the defendant refusing to let parties in, whereupon he ordered him to open it, and, on his refusal, undertook to open it himself, and, in doing so, got hit on the head by the defendant with a stick.

Judge HALL thought this was hardly a part of Munroe's duty as a Custom-house officer, and the Jury found a verdict of not guilty.

For the United States, Mr. Joachimssen. For defendant, Mr. Donohue.

CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT.

Capt. Edward Hudson of the steamer St. Louis was then tried and acquitted on a charge of cruel and unusual punishment inflicted upon one of the crew the evidence not warranting a verdict of guilty.

Mr. Donohue appeared for the defendant.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before the Hon. Justice Sutherland.

John F. Butterworth, receiver, &c., vs. William O'Brien and John O'Brien.—Judgment for defendant on demurrer.

John F. J. Deraismes vs. The Park Bank.—Judgment for defendant on demurrer.

Geo. Greason vs. David and Mary King.—Judgment for plaintiff for $96, with interest thereon from May 17, 1855—the judgment to be a lien and charge upon the real estate of the defendant Mary King, mentioned in the complaint.

Daniel M. Hodges vs. Ellicott Evans.—Motion for new trial denied, with costs.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Russell.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, the case of Frederick Nolan came up for trial. He was charged with breaking into the store of Mr. Simon Frisner, No. 288 Grand-street, on the night of the 15th of April, by the rear door, and stealing a number of coats, pants and vests, his property. The prisoner was indicted with Andrew Gumegar and George Burbeil, who were convicted of the offence, and sent to the State Prison. The locking of the store was satisfactorily proved, the Court sherr that they could not find the prisoner guilt The prisoner was found guilty of grea and sentenced to five years in the Broadway, while pretending to make a purchase, by substituting a pin of the value of about $25.

John Sheridan was indicted with a person named James Murray, who was tried and convicted last term, for highway robbery, in taking $20 by violence from the person of George Crowell, a sailor, in Water-street, between 9 and 10 o'clock P. M., on the 29th of March last. He was convicted and sentenced to ten years in State Prison.

LAW INSTITUTE—ANNUAL ELECTION.—At the election yesterday of officers for the "New-York Law Institute," for the year commencing May, 1858, the following gentlemen were unanimously elected:

Bainbridge Smith, Worthington Romaine, Henry A. Cram. Committee on Jurisprudence—William Evarts, John W. Edmonds, Edwin W. Stoughton, Henry H. Morange, Augustus W. Clason, C. Bainbridge Smith, Enoch L. Fancher. Committee of Censorship—Erastus C. Benedict, Charles F. Southmayd, John McKeon, Benjamin V. Abbott, John L. Wendell, Edmund Terry, Anthony R. Tyett, Benjamin T. Kissam, Denry D. Sedgwick.

MARKET REPORTS.

Markets..Carefully reported for the New-York Times

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, May 4, 1858—6 P. M.

ASHES—Are in moderate request, and are steady, at $6 for Pots and Pearls, ℔ 100 lbs.

BOOTS AND SHOES—The demand is moderate, but with light supplies (especially of desirable styles) available; prices are generally well supported. Orders from the South are decreasing in number and extent. The inquiry from Western dealers is more vigorous. There is very little doing for shipment. The latest accounts from California offer no encouragement to send goods thither. The Boston Shipping List says that in Boston, "Desirable and seasonable goods of prime quality are very scarce, and the feeling is quite firm for nearly all kinds. Manufacturers are busily employed in filling orders for the South and West, and, with a steady demand from the New-England trade, a fair business has been done. The Spring trade is, however, fast drawing to a close, and in a week or two we look for a very quiet market. Manufacturers will soon have to turn their attention to Fall work. The stock of goods here is very light, and throughout the country must be smaller than in previous years, so that the prospects of a good Fall demand look rather encouraging at the present time. Stock of all kinds continues to sustain the prices of last week, and the increased activity among the manufacturers has led to an advance in the price of labor, which has slightly increased the cost of goods. Among the exports since our last, we notice 1,763 cases from this port to San Francisco, and 50 cases from New-York. The quantity cleared from the Boston Custom-house has been as follows:

	1858.	1857.
For the week—cases	3,645	3,402
Since January 1	65,882	79,990
Total	69,527	83,392

DRY GOODS—The principal sale, to-day, was one held by WILMERDINGS, HOGUET and HUMBERT. The catalogue was mainly composed of rather desirable goods, which found buyers at prices indicative of no remarkable change.

COFFEE—Exhibits no important change, sales having been reported of 125 bags Rio, in lots, at 10c. @10¾c.; 1,100 Cape Hayti en at about 9¾c. each 4 months' credit, and 800 St. Domingo, mainly at 8¾c., cash ℔ lb.

Stock, May 1, 1857, bags	14,800	3,000

In Baltimore, last week, there were received 2,080 bags Rio Coffee; sold, 7,350 bags Rio at from 10c.@ 11¾c., including one cargo of 4,150 bags at 10¾c.; 1,300 bags Laguayra at 11¾c.@12¼c., and 200 Bahia at 11¾c.@12¾c. ℔ lb. Stock there, on Saturday, 8,080 bags Rio, and 1,600 bags of other kinds.

COTTON—The demand is fair and prices favor factors. Sales 1,800 bales, including Middling, at 12¾c.@12¾c. for Upland, and 12¾c.@13c. for Gulf, ℔ lb.

FISH—Dry Cod are more freely offered and are heavy at from $3@$3 50, according to quality, ℔ cwt. Mackerel and Herring are in moderate request at about former rates.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour has been freely offered, and purchased at, however, generally easier prices. The home trade are the leading buyers, but there is rather more inquiry from shippers, induced by the prevailing low currency. Sales 14,000 bbls.

Poor to good Superfine State	$4 05@$4 20
Extra State	4 25@ 4 40
Superfine Indiana and Michigan	4 00@ 4 20

Extra Indiana and Michigan	4 20@ 6 00
Extra Ohio	4 30@ 6 00
Fancy Genesee	4 25@ 4 30
Extra Genesee	5 00@ 6 50
Low to very choice Extra Missouri	4 75@ 7 00

Canadian Flour continues heavy and languid. Sales 750 bbls. low to good extra, at $4 25@$5 50 ℔ bbl. Southern is in good demand at about former rates. The transactions since our last comprise about 2,700 bbls., at $4 50@$5 for ordinary mixed to choice extra, ℔ bbl. Rye Flour is dull and heavy at $3@$3 50 for fine to superfine ℔ bbl. Corn Meal is quiet and unchanged, at $3 50@$3 55 for Jersey, and $3 90 for Brandywine, ℔ bbl. The latter in puncheons commands $18 each.

FRUIT—Sales by auction, 3,350 boxes Messina Oranges at $1 55@$2 75; and 1,050 boxes do. Lemons at $2 75@$2 95, cash, ℔ box.

GRAIN—Wheat is depressed and declining,—there being more sellers than buyers. The transactions since our last amount to about 23,000 bushels, including very good White Western at $1 25; Red Western at $1 08; Chicago Spring, to arrive, at about 90c.; poor to prime White Southern at $1 08@$1 30; and Red Southern at $1 05@$1 12 ℔ bushel. Corn is more sought after by home dealers and shippers at firmer prices. Sales 41,000 bushels at 65c.@67c. for unsound; 68c.@70c. for straw colored; 70c.@72c. for White; and 72c.@73c. for Yellow, ℔ bushel. Sales were also reported of 4,500 bushels Rye at 65c.@70c. ℔ bushel. Small lots of fair to good Barley brought 60c.@63c. ℔ bushel. Oats sell slowly at 47c.@48¾c. for Western; 44c.@46c. for State; 38c.@44c. for Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware; and 32c.@38c. for Southern, ℔ bushel.

HAY—Sales have been reported of 80 bales, at 45c. @60c., cash, ℔ 100 lbs.

MOLASSES—The demand continues moderate at former quotations: New-Orleans 35c.@37c.; Porto Rico, 28c@35c.; Cuba Muscovado, 24c.@31c.; Clayed Cuba, 21c.@23c., ℔ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—The market is generally quiet, without any important alteration in prices.

WILMINGTON, May 1.—TURPENTINE—Further sales yesterday of 73 bbls., at $2 85 for yellow dip, and $1 75 for hard, ℔ 280 lbs. No sales this morning. SPIRITS TURPENTINE has declined 1c., and 560 bbls. sold this morning at 44c. ℔ gallon. Nothing done in ROSIN. TAR—40 bbls. sold yesterday afternoon at $1 60 ℔ bbl.

OILS—Linseed is selling rather slowly at 67c.@ 68c., cash, ℔ gallon. Other kinds are quiet and somewhat nominal.

PROVISIONS—Pork is in moderate demand, at reduced prices. Sales 1,600 bbls., in lots, at $18 25@ $18 50 for Mess, and $14 65@$15 for Prime, ℔ bbl., closing with few, if any, buyers disposed to pay over our lowest quotations. Cut Meats are depressed and languid at 8¾c.@10c. for Hams, and 6¼c.@7c. for Shoulders, ℔ lb. Bacon is in light supply and is inactive, at 8¼c.@10c. ℔ lb. Lard is plentier and cheaper; sales 430 bbls., in lots, at 11¾c.@11¾c.; and 200 kegs, at 12¾c., ℔ lb. Beef is moderately inquired for, at full rates; sales 280 bbls., in lots, at $12 75@ $14 for repacked Western Mess; $14 50@$15 for extra do.; $10 75@$11 50 for Country Mess; and $8@ $8 50 for do. Prime. ℔ bbl. Prime Mess Beef, $18@ $22 ℔ tc. Beef Hams, $16@$18 ℔ bbl. Butter is in demand, at 11c.@22c. for Ohio; 16c.@25c. for common to very good State; and 25c.@27c. for prime to choice State, ℔ lb. Cheese is heavy and languid, at 6c.@ 8¾c. ℔ lb.; small lots bring higher rates.

RICE—Sales 200 tcs., at $3 62½@$4 25 for fair to choice, ℔ 100 lbs. Yesterday's sales amounted to 1,200 tcs, chiefly to speculators.

SUGARS—Are plenty and heavy. Sales 900 hhds., including Cuba at 5¼c.@6¾c.; Porto Rico at 5¾c.@ 6¾c., and New-Orleans at 7c. ℔ lb.

TALLOW—Sales 25,000 lbs. prime at 10¼c. ℔ lb.

TEAS—The auction sale, to-day, was poorly attended. The Greens were mostly disposed of at a shade lower prices. Only a portion of the Blacks found buyers at about previous rates.

TOBACCO—Kentucky is in better request, though buyers are expecting some concessions. Spanish is scarce and high. Sales since Friday 123 hhds. Kentucky and Maysville at 11c.@15c.; 179 bales Havana, and 10 bales Cuba on private terms, and 54 cases seed leaf at 10c.@20c. ℔ lb.

WHALEBONE—Sales have been made in New-Bedford, since our last, of 13,200 lbs. Ochotsk at $1 07 @$1 25; with 19,000 lbs. Northwest Coast, and 7,000 lbs. South Sea at private bargain.

Spirit of the Trade Circulars.

ABRAHAM KNIGHT & SON'S NAVAL STORE AND OIL CIRCULARS.

NEW-YORK, Monday, May 3, 1858.

NAVAL STORES—Since our last, Spirits of Turpentine have somewhat fluctuated in price, some lots having been sold as low as 48c, but to-day the market closes very firm at 49c, with a light stock on hand. Common Resin keeps in active demand at $1 51 for lots afloat, and $1 55 from yard. Medium grades are in good demand, at $3 50@$4 50 for No. 1 ℔ 280 lbs. White and Pale are scarce at from $5@$8 ℔ 280 lbs.

OILS—Linseed has been in moderate demand; lots from store are now selling at 68c.@69c. Crude Whale has advanced, and we note a sale of 1,000 bbls. here at 55c. Crude Sperm is quiet at $1 20 ℔ gallon. Lard is in fair demand at 95c.@$1 ℔ gallon.

TALLOW—The demand for the local trade is small, and therefore the market keeps inactive, and small sales are being made at 10¾c. Rough Fat is still selling at 7¾c.

THE AMERICAN PLATE-GLASS COMPANY—Having reconstructed and enlarged its works, are prepared to furnish ROUGH PLATE GLASS of quality superior to anything that has been offered in this market, of any size, in any quantity, and at the shortest notice. Also, PRESSED GLASS of all descriptions, for pavements, vessels, &c., &c. Liberal discount allowed to the trade. Office, 298 Broadway, New-York

THE EVERETT HAT,
Having established its claims upon the attention of the trade as
A DRESS HAT,
The undersigned feel encouraged to make further efforts, in pursuance of the same line of policy as heretofore announced by them, and have new the pleasure of offering, for the examination of their friends,
THE CRITTENDEN HAT,
Which, leaving the line of trade already occupied by its predecessor quite undisturbed, seeks for itself another and no less important field of operations, basing its claims to notice—like the statesman whose name it bears—not so much upon startling novelty and originality of conception, as upon the
EXCELLENCE OF ITS QUALITY,
Whether it be in material, color, or proportion, and in being altogether just what it should be for the purpose designed—
A SUMMER HAT,
With a crown sufficient to protect the head, and brim enough to shade the face.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

CHURCH ARCHITECTURE.
HART'S PARISH CHURCHES,
DESIGNS IN THE THREE STYLES OF
ENGLISH CHURCH ARCHITECTURE
From ONE HUNDRED ILLUSTRATIONS, by J. COLEMAN HART, Architect. Imperial 8vo.; price $4.

From the Presbyterian Banner and Advocate.
The London publishers are famed for the beauty and correctness with which their magnificent publications are prepared; but we have never seen any architectural volume, even from Weale, of Holborn, that for paper, type, engraving and beauty of perspective views, exceeds this work.

From the Church Journal.
The history of architecture on this side of the water cannot show a more beautiful work than J. Coleman Hart's Designs for Parish Churches.

From the United States Mining Journal.
We are glad to see that the subject has been taken up by an architect so capable as Mr. Hart, who has produced one of the most useful and beautiful books ever issued on the science of Church building.

From the Puritan Recorder.
This, in its way, is a splendid production. It appears to be the work of a master in his profession. The drawings and engravings, and indeed the whole mechanical execution of the book are elegant.

From the Commercial, (Wilmington.)
In paper, typography, engravings and binding, it is a gem of a book. It cultivates a man to have such a book in sight. Every Church Committee should examine this volume before beginning its work.

From the Episcopal Recorder.
This is a superbly illustrated volume, containing a vast amount of information in reference to the schools of architecture of which it treats.

From the Independent.
The book, considered as a disquisition upon the principles of Gothic architecture, with an analysis of its several parts, is a valuable contribution to ecclesiology. He gives also a valuable chapter on nomenclature.

From the Congregationalist.
We lodge the treatise on a choice shelf, by the side of "Winkles' English Cathedrals," with the feeling that we have another good book there.

The New-York Times Office.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is now Edited, printed and published in the new TIMES BUILDING upon the Park, opposite the City Hall. In consequence of the increase of our advertising patronage, we have enlarged the size of our sheet, by extending the length of its columns, and shall now be able, we trust, to find room for all the current news of the day, with the Political, Literary and general miscellany, which our readers have a right to expect. As we have only one of Hoe's new Ten-Cylinder Lightning Presses as yet in working order, we shall be unable for a few days to issue our usual Evening Edition;—subscribers at a distance will receive the morning issue instead of it. In the course of two or three weeks we shall have other Presses erected, and shall then be able more fully to meet the expectations of the public

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Cunard steamship Europa, from Liverpool on the 24th ult., arrived at Halifax yesterday, bringing three days' later advices from Europe. The news by this arrival is not specially important, but presents some features of interest. In the British Parliament the Government had declared that no further proceedings would be taken against Dr. Bernard. The clipper ship James Baines, built in Boston, but owned in England, had been totally destroyed by fire in the Liverpool docks. She was in the Australian trade, and, with her cargo, was valued at £170,000 sterling. From France we learn that the excitement that followed the acquittal of Bernard in London had subsided. The Spanish Government, it is reported, had denied that the President of the United States entertained any hostile design against the integrity of the nation. Later news from India is received by the Europa. Various successes by the British at different points are mentioned. The retreat of Nena Sahib had been stormed and taken, but he managed to escape. A large sum was offered for his head.

The Ariel, from Southampton, arrived at this port yesterday, bringing London papers of the 21st of April. We obtain from them, and publish elsewhere, some interesting details of the news received from Quebec on the arrival there of the Anglo-Saxon.

In Congress, yesterday, both Houses engaged in business with spirit and industry. In the Senate, after some unimportant business, the Paraguay resolution was amended by striking out the clause authorizing the President to employ force, and then laid on the table. An earnest debate arose upon the bill to repeal the fishing bounties. Mr. Clay, of Alabama, made an elaborate speech in support of it, when the subject was postponed till to-day. Mr. Douglas failed to have the Oregon bill taken up. The Printing bill was discussed and passed nem. con., when the Senate adjourned. In the House of Representatives Mr. Clingman introduced a resolution for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty. A motion to lay the subject on the table was negatived by a large majority, and its further consideration postponed till to-day. After some other business the Senate bill for the admission of Minnesota was taken up, and a spirited discussion arose thereon. Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, and others opposing the admission on the ground of fraud, irregularity, and violation of law, in the formation of the Constitution, and of defects in the instrument itself. In the course of the debate reference was made to Kansas, whereupon several gentlemen took occasion to define their position, and explain their votes upon the Conference Report. When they had concluded the House adjourned.

According to the Leavenworth Ledger, a dispatch reached the fort from Utah on Wednesday last, calling for reinforcements, and giving an account of a skirmish with a guerilla party of Mormons by a body of troops under Capt. Anderson, in which three-fourths of those engaged were killed on both sides. The report is discredited in St. Louis, at which place a number of prominent army officers have arrived, on their way to Utah, including Generals Smith and Harney.

The American Medical Association met at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington yesterday, upwards of 400 delegates being in attendance. The first day's business related principally to the organization of the body. In the evening the delegates were received at the President's house by appointment.

Tuckerman, the mail robber, was yesterday sentenced to twenty-one years' imprisonment.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, Frederick Nowlan, an accomplice of Ganniger and Dusbold, convicted last term before Recorder Barnard, was found guilty of grand larceny, and sentenced to five years in the State Prison. Charles Henry was tried for stealing a diamond pin, worth $185, from the store of Tiffany & Co., while pretending to make a purchase. He was convicted and sentenced to three years in the State Prison. John Sheridan was convicted on a charge of robbing a sailor in Water-street, and sentenced to ten years in the State Prison.

Last night, at the regular monthly meeting of the New-York Historical Society, Mr. Thomas Devyr read an elaborate essay on the History of the Markets of this City.

The General Markets, yesterday, were somewhat firmer for Cotton, the sales of which amounted to about 1,000 bales. Flour and Wheat were more freely dealt in at, however, easier prices. Corn was brisker and dearer. Provisions were heavy, and Wool products were cheaper. The movements in Groceries—which were moderate—exhibited no important change. The auction sale of teas resulted unsatisfactorily to importers. Freights were improving.

Kansas Affairs—Tone of Public Sentiment.

We need scarcely commend to public attention the letters of our Special Correspondent in Kansas. The reports hitherto received from that Territory, not only by us, but by most of our Eastern cotemporaries, have been so deeply tinged with party feeling as to command little confidence from the distant and dispassionate community to which they were addressed. Under the circumstances this was scarcely to be avoided. Most of the Kansas Correspondents of the Press have been residents of the Territory, and zealous actors in the party contests by which it has been agitated. It was natural that they should write as they felt, and that everything from their pens should bear the impress of the heated partisanship in which they lived and moved. The result has been that Kansas Correspondence has become a synonym for exaggeration, and has commanded very little confidence or respect from the public at large. The necessity for more just and reliable statements, induced us to send a Special Correspondent into the Territory, from whom we may expect its dispassionate and independent representation of affairs.

The letters published in this morning's Times will be found of special interest from their bearing upon the new contest which is about to open in Kansas. The passage of the Conference bill by Congress has, for the moment, at all events, transferred the struggle to the Territory. The Lecompton Constitution is about to be submitted to the vote of the people. Disguised and nominally excluded as it is, this issue is practically and substantially presented to the inhabitants of Kansas, and they will have no difficulty in appreciating at its proper value the importance of the pending vote. Our correspondent confirms the views we have hitherto expressed on this subject,—saying that whatever differences may prevail upon other topics, the feeling of the people of Kansas is almost unanimous against the Lecompton Constitution. He states, moreover, very emphatically, that there is actually no Pro-Slavery Party left in the Territory,—that this question is settled decisively and forever,—and that whatever may be done in Congress, nothing can force a Slave Constitution upon the new State. The people are determined never to permit the Lecompton Constitution to go into practical operation, and if it had been adopted by Congress without a submission to the popular vote, it would have been as absolute a nullity as if it had never been passed.

But another statement of our correspondent, in view of the turn which affairs finally took in Congress, is still more interesting and important. At the time he wrote, the substantial provisions of the Conference bill had reached Kansas, and he says the passage of that bill would be more satisfactory to the people of the Territory than the Crittenden amendment itself. The reasons of this preference are partly political and partly based upon the condition of the Territory. A very large portion of the people do not desire admission just at present. So far from considering their exclusion a punishment they will receive it as a boon. They are not prepared to shoulder the expenses of a State Government. They have been so long and so severely harassed by the party conflicts which have prevailed, their business has been so much interrupted, and the growth and prosperity of the Territory so much retarded, that they would greatly prefer a Territorial régime for a year or two longer to immediate admission as a State. They prefer that the Federal Government should pay their public expenses, rather than subject themselves to taxation for that purpose. The "threat," therefore, which has been embodied in the Conference bill is not likely to affect the vote on the Lecompton Constitution. It is certain, as Governors Walker and Stanton have both asserted, to be rejected. It seems, moreover, that political considerations conspire to bring about the same result. Just at present the Free-State Party is divided in sentiment between the radicals and conservatives,—the former having control of the organization;—and it is not at all unlikely that, if the State were admitted, their most conspicuous leaders would be elected Senators, and take substantial control of public affairs. Some little delay, which shall give time for the passions of heated partisans to cool, and allay some of the bitterness which years of strife and injustice have engendered, will remedy this state of things, and give control of the new Territory to the men best entitled to the confidence of its inhabitants.

The Kansas controversy, we may therefore hope, is over. The sovereignty has been substantially vested in the people, in spite of the endeavors to cheat them out of it. We have no doubt that henceforward they will regulate their institutions in their own way.

The Acquittal of Bernard in France.

Our anticipations of the effect to be produced in France by the acquittal of Simon Bernard, are fully borne out by the imperfect reports already received of French feeling and by the tone in which the subject is treated by the Press of Paris. The legal aspects of the case, as they affected the mind of the English Jury, are utterly vague and incomprehensible in the eyes of writers accustomed to the minute and methodical applications of the French Civil Code. When France is told that the prosecutors for the English Crown failed to bring the case of Bernard by the evidence within the scope of the statute under which the charge of complicity in a felony was advanced against him, she simply shrugs her shoulders in contemptuous disbelief of the sincerity of the prosecution, and passes by all the learned exposition of points of law reserved for the event of a verdict of guilty, to fasten upon the vital facts of the final acquittal of the intemperate and revolutionary harangue of the prisoner's counsel—and of the extraordinary demonstrations of applause with which Mr. Edwin James' denunciation of Louis Napoleon Bonaparte was received by an English audience within the sacred precincts of a Court of Justice. The more venomous and vindictive of the Parisian journals, such as the Univers, which is the real organ of those bitterest enemies both of Bonapartism and the Republic, the Romanist reactionaries, set no limits to their abuse of England and the English. They declare that England has indorsed the crime of Orsini, and that Bernard was acquitted because he was proved to have been an accomplice in the attempt upon the life of the Emperor. Could these foolish fanatics urge the unreflecting army of France into a fury of blind hostility against Great Britain, their dearest desire would be fulfilled. And their objurgations must therefore be taken as a sort of French "Buncombe," addressed to the simplicity of those whom they most despise, and whose ruin they are most greedily plotting. But the calmer and more patriotic of the Parisian journals do not judge the actual course of English justice in the case of Bernard with sufficient composure and fairness—and they deduce from the fact of his escape inferences in regard to the feeling of England towards the Emperor which can hardly fail to bear bitter and dangerous fruit on the Continent of Europe. Perhaps we ought to be less surprised at this befogged condition of the Parisian Press, when we observe that some even of our own American cotemporaries, who ought to understand the general character of English legal proceedings, are equally obscured with the luminaries of Gaul. An illustrious journalist of this City, for instance, who has enjoyed not only the illuminating influences common to all of Anglo-Saxon origin, but special facilities for entering as deeply into the law of England as Roos entered into the nature of a sheep, cannot quite comprehend how it is that the evidence adduced against Bernard should have failed to bring his case "within the scope of the statute of George IV.," and thinks the Jury must have passed upon the absolute question of his guilt or innocence in a kind of informal Pickwickian way. When the Editor of the Courier and Enquirer, who read law, as we all know, with Lord Clarendon himself at a London Club-window, is thus bewildered, we may pardon the French press for falling into strange misapprehensions.

Unfortunately these misapprehensions of the Parisian press happen, just at this juncture of time, to be of more significance, incredible as it may appear, than the blunders of the New-York Courier and Enquirer, and there can be little doubt that the result of the Bernard trial has severed another of the links which bind England and France to keep the peace of the world. The Emperor Napoleon may think in 1858, as he thought in 1855, that "authority in England ever acts according to the law," but he has unfortunately accustomed his own subjects to see "authority" act with a marvelous disregard of the law, and he must accept it as one of the penalties of his own power that the vast majority of Frenchmen should be incapable of understanding a political order in which the sovereign is bound by the ties which control the meanest subject—and in which no "political exigency," or "reason of State," can raise itself as a barrier to the majestic march of impartial justice and of laws always independent and supreme, if often technical and imperfect. The military supporters of the Empire, in particular, will believe that the English Government need only have willed the conviction of Bernard to compass that end—and they will chew a great many cuds of fancy, more bitter than sweet, over the ways and means of punishing with sword and flame the perfidious rulers who embraced the Emperor in public and aided his assassins in private. Ignorance and prejudice are unluckily very real forces in this world—and they have both been set vividly in motion within the "pacific empire of Bordeaux," by the failure of the charge of complicity in murder, and by the abandonment of the charge of conspiracy, preferred by the Government of Queen Victoria against Dr Simon Bernard.

Affairs of the Street Commissioner's Department.

The affairs of the Street Commissioner's office attract an unusual and very gratifying degree of public attention. The contest in which it has been involved for the past year will not be without good results if it shall have the effect of impressing the public mind with a sense of the importance of this Department, and of the necessity of having its affairs conducted with a paramount regard to the public good.

Mr. Cooper's appointment of his subordinates was announced in the Times of Saturday. The chief clerk in the office is Jonathan Trotter. He was for many years a very successful leather merchant in "the Swamp," during which time he was elected Mayor of the city of Brooklyn, and discharged the duties of the office with great success. Removing afterwards to this City, he was chosen one of the Assistant Aldermen, and became President of the Board. He is a gentleman of unblemished character, highly esteemed by the mercantile community; and the pecuniary losses he has experienced since his retirement from business, which have led to his acceptance of this office, thus become a public benefit. In politics, Mr. Trotter has always been a Democrat.

The most important position under the Street Commissioner, next to the Deputy, is that of Superintendent of Street Improvements. This officer has the direction of all the street work, and ought therefore to be an engineer. The gentleman is Captain Mansfield Lovell, a native of this State, and a graduate from West Point. He was Adjutant to General Quitman during the Mexican War, and served throughout the campaign, from Vera Cruz to Mexico. In this position he was intimately associated with the Regiment of New-York Volunteers who were under the command of General Quitman. Captain Lovell, upon the conclusion of the war, deeming his pay as Captain inadequate, and seeing no immediate chance for further glory or promotion, resigned his commission, and has resided for several years past in this City. Though not a politician, Captain Lovell's sympathies are decidedly with the Democratic Party.

By reason of the injury which our commerce is suffering from the dilapidated condition of our wharves, a number of prominent merchants made an earnest appeal to Mr. Cooper to appoint as Superintendent of Wharves, Piers and Slips, some man of undoubted qualifications and honesty. He accordingly selected Jacob A. Westervelt formerly Mayor of this City, and an extensive builder of ships, whose pecuniary misfortunes, two or three years since, excited universal sympathy. This appointment has been unanimously approved. Mr. Westervelt is a Democrat.

John B. Corlies is the Superintendent of Repairs and Supplies, an office which, under the Charter, can only be given to a builder. Mr. Corlies was formerly largely engaged in business, but retired several years since, with a large fortune. The bureau in charge of this Superintendent, and the two previously named, are the ones in which large frauds can be committed by dishonest men. Mr. Corlies, who is a Republican, was recommended to Mr. Cooper by a number of our leading citizens, for whom he had built houses, and who had thus obtained a personal conviction of his integrity and skill. The Deputy-Superintendent is John Richardson, of the firm of Wm. Richardson & Son, pencil-case makers. Mr. Richardson, was one of the most decided and active of the anti-Wood portion of the General Committee at Tammany Hall, a category which also includes Mr. Cooper, who there formed his own opinion of Mr. R.'s worth.

The Superintendent of Lamps and Gas is William Gayte, a stonecutter of the Seventh Ward, and a Democrat. Mr. Gayte has not a very extensive reputation, but he was earnestly recommended by Alderman Adams, whose leading and efficient part in the removal of Devlin commended him to public favor, and entitled him to expect that some consideration would be paid to his individual wishes, when not inconsistent with the public interests.

Thomas Byrnes, who was removed from the Custom House by Collector Schell, and appointed to another place by Surveyor Hart, is the Superintendent of Lands and Places. He is a very popular First Ward Democrat, and was also one of Mr. Cooper's associates, as an anti-Wood member of the General Committee at Tammany Hall.

The appointment of John Nesbit as Superintendent of Roads, may be taken as a mark of respect by Mr. Cooper, to the memory of his intimate personal friend, the late Lorenzo B. Shepard, of whom Mr. Nesbit was a devoted adherent. Mr. Nesbit is of the firm of Murphy & Nesbit, dealers in building materials, and a Democrat.

A matter of prime importance to holders of real estate is the Bureau for the Collection of Assessments. As one of that class, Henry M. Schieffelin—a prominent merchant of this City—has given much attention to the subject. At the request of Mr. Cooper he has consented to take the office of Collector for the period of sixty days, for the purpose of organizing the Bureau in such manner as will guard the interests of citizens whose property is affected by its operations. Mr. Schieffelin is a Republican. The Deputy Collectors are Daniel E. Delavan, the Grand Sachem of the Tammany Society; David Kissner, Captain of Police for the Fourteenth Ward up to the disbandment of the Municipal force; and John H. Chambers, Deputy Clerk of the Common Council for many years past, in which position he has acquired the confidence and regard of Mayor Tiemann, who earnestly recommended his appointment.

Of these appointments the Democratic Party has the lion's share, and to this result some exception has, not unnaturally, been taken; although not even the Republicans are united upon this point. The Tribune alone has spoken with disparagement of the appointments, and is somewhat bitter against the Mayor as the cause of them, by reason of his nomination of Mr. Cooper; while the Courier is decided in its commendation of the appointments and also of the Mayor. It is important to the City that full justice should be done to the action of the Mayor, in order to strengthen his hands in the discharge of his official duties. When he took office he appointed two clerks, one, Mr. J. B. Auld, recommended by Robert J. Dillon and other leading Democrats, who took an active part in aid of Mr. Tiemann's election; and the other, Richard Scott, the President of the Republican Association of the Twenty-second Ward. He allowed Mr. Conover, the Republican Street Commissioner, to carry his case to the Court of Appeals and obtain its decision thereon. When that was adverse to him, and Mr. Devlin became Street Commissioner, his removal became an object of overruling importance. Every politician in the City knows that this result could only have been secured by the appointment of a Democrat in his place. The Mayor would only nominate a citizen of ability and integrity, and the Board of Aldermen would only confirm a Democrat. Mr. Cooper was almost the only man the two branches of the appointing power could agree upon. He was therefore selected, contrary to his own wishes as decidedly expressed. If the Mayor had endeavored to revive the tactics of Fernando Wood, by extorting a pledge from Mr. Cooper to yield the selection of his subordinates, his demand would certainly have been rejected with indignation; although, deference has doubtless been given to his wishes in making the appointments. Mr. Cooper, however, taking the office perforce, and being, without concealment, an earnest and firm Democrat, in the bestowal of patronage almost of necessity favors his own political friends and associates.

But, even if the Mayor was responsible for the decided political bias of the Street Commissioner's slate, the Republicans, as a party, could hardly complain. Mr. Tiemann is a Democrat; was nominated for the Mayoralty because he was one, and if he had not been, he could not have been elected. He came into his office as the representative of our citizens, without respect to party, and yet he has been treated in the Police Board, as its proceedings show, with very little, if any, more consideration than was accorded to Mayor Wood. His requests have been denied with very little ceremony by the Republican majority. If, therefore, he had felt a little chagrin it would not be strange, though we do not imagine that such feelings have been allowed to influence seriously his official action.

These matters, however, are of minor importance. The point in respect to which the great public, not the small cliques of either party, are most anxious, so far as Mr. Cooper and his appointments are concerned, is the capable, efficient and honest administration of his Department. If that is accomplished, and we have much hope that it will be, all is well; if it is not, though President Buchanan and Governor Seward had divided the patronage so evenly that the official scales were exactly balanced, a stern and indignant public reprobation would await the result.

The State Printing.—Another legal controversy is threatened about the State Printing. The Legislature in April, 1854, passed a law authorizing the Secretary of State, Comptroller and Treasurer to contract with the publisher of a daily newspaper at Albany for the publication of all legal notices at certain stipulated rates. This law took effect May 3, and the officers designated immediately made a contract for four years with the publishers of the Evening Journal. The four years expired on Monday last,—and the State officers mentioned, being now Democrats, at once proceeded to make a new contract with the publishers of the Atlas and Argus. The old contractors, however, immediately procured an injunction forbidding the State officers from making any new contract, on the ground that the power conferred by the law had been exhausted, and that there was, therefore, no legal authority for making a new contract. Owing to some informality in the process, however, the injunction was disregarded and the contract was closed with the publishers of the Atlas and Argus. It is to be regretted that there should be doubt or uncertainty respecting the State paper, as many important interests are liable to be prejudiced thereby.

What Next.—A bill has been introduced in Congress to pension the descendants of privateers during the last war!—We shall probably next hear of pensions to the descendants of the sutlers and cow-boys of the Revolution, and it is not at all impossible that the posterity of the pirates we have hung may claim similar rewards, if it can be proved that their ancestors ever plundered ships belonging to parties with whose nation we were ever at war. The ingenuity with which our public treasury is plundered is really remarkable. There seems to be no end to the devices and pretexts employed for getting access to the money of the Government. Our public lands have been pretty nearly exhausted already in these plundering crusades:—we shall be compelled by and by to increase the tariff for their protection. This is the only sort of American industry which finds favor in the eyes of our Government.

Academy of Music.

The accession of Formes to the concert forces of the Academy is a decided step in the right direction—which means the popular direction. On the operatic stage, Mr. Formes is more remarkable as an actor than as a singer—his reputation in the last respect depending on a few moments of electrical splendor. These are the moments that he transfers to the concert-room, and, in consequence, we are persuaded that Mr. Formes shines to greater advantage there, in the detached pieces of a miscellaneous programme, than in the sustained burden of a heavy musical rôle. Two pieces were announced, but four were given—"In dieser heiligen Hallen," the "Bay of Biscay," the "Wanderer," and the "Wolf." The most noticeable of the series was Dibdin's famous nautical song, which was given with the unction of an old salt, and with that peculiar twist at the end which sailors affect, and which is as symbolic as hitching up the trousers and crying "Abaft of Jack Robinson." There was a characteristic heartiness in this piece which we have seldom seen equaled. It was tumultuously received.

Mr. Musard produced a new Quadrille called "Gotham," founded on American airs. It is a very fluent and jolly affair, and affords some good opportunities for the soloists. The fifth figure is afflicted with a kind of Musical Elephantiasis, which destroys its symmetry. A pot pourri of upwards of thirty popular tunes, strung together in such a way that their juxtaposition excites a laugh, is not a very elevated dish to set before the patrons of the principal opera house of America, but it pleases the masses, and is therefore tagged on to this unfortunate figure.

Mr. Cooper, the English violinist, played a fantasia by Sainton, in a very admirable way, and was warmly received. We are glad to observe that this grand artist progresses rapidly in public esteem.

Concert.—A morning Concert will be given today at Niblo's Saloon, in aid of the fund for the liquidation of the entire debt of the Free Church of the Holy Martyrs. Mme. Zimmerman, Miss Madeline Gellis, Miss Brainerd, Miss Mary Gellis, Signor Tiberini, Miss Rivarde and Mr. Appomas will assist. The conductors are Signor Albites and C. W. Beames.

Correction.—An article in yesterday's Times assumed that communications made to clergymen, in their professional character, were not privileged from disclosure on the witness' stand. This, however, is not the case. Section 90 of article 8, title 3, part 3 Revised Statutes, provides that, "No minister of the Gospel, or priest of any denomination whatsoever, shall be allowed to disclose any confessions made to him in his professional character, in the course of discipline enjoined by the rules or practice of such denomination."

The prohibition to testify in regard to clergymen is not so comprehensive as that relating to physicians. It is restricted to confessions, and to such only as "in the course of discipline," and does not extend, as in the case of medical men, to any necessary information acquired in the course of professional attendance.

City Items.

The Street Commissioner's Appointments.—David Kissner and Gershon Cohen, appointed by Mr. Cooper Deputy Collectors of Assessments, and James Taylor appointed Keeper of the City Hall, having given the required bonds, were sworn into office, yesterday, by the Mayor. Messrs. Wm. Hastings and R. B. Connolly became bondsmen for Mr. Kissner; and Messrs. G. A. Conover and R. P. Compton gave the required sureties for Mr. Cohen. William Hindhaugh, Esq., became surety for Mr. Taylor. It was understood that the list of subordinate clerks would be announced yesterday afternoon. A large and anxious crowd of eager applicants and their friends thronged the vestibule and entry leading to the office till the closing hour, when they were informed that Mr. Cooper would give out the list to-day. It is said that there have been over one thousand applicants for each place to be filled.

Young Men's Christian Union.—The Young Men's Christian Union held a regular meeting last evening, at Clinton Hall. The principal business was the adoption of a new Constitution. The President, Mr. Warren, occupied the Chair. This Society admits all persons of good character, who believe in Christianity, without distinction of sect or party, the object of the Society being, as set forth in the preamble, to improve themselves religiously, morally and intellectually, and to establish a Christian union, exempt both from sectarian exclusiveness and associative dictation. They have members from several evangelical churches, so-called—from Unitarian, Universalist, Catholic, and some who are not connected with any Church. There will be a public meeting on Thursday evening, May 13th, to which able speakers have been invited.

Violations of the Sunday Law.—General-Superintendent Tallmadge has ordered the Police Captains to report the places kept open on Sunday for the sale of liquor, cigars, &c. Nineteen captains, out of twenty-two, made reports yesterday morning, the unreported Wards being the Second, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Twentieth. Total number of places kept open were reported as 924. There was reported a marked improvement over preceding Sabbaths, inasmuch as most of the dram shops keep their shutters on their windows, and conduct their business in a more quiet manner than formerly.

The Art of Riding.—Capt. Ralston delivered his second lecture on "Equitation, or the Art of Riding," at the New-York Medical College in Thirteenth-street, last evening. He set before his audience a very complete view of the characteristics of a good equestrian, and the means of attaining them. In describing the correct manner of holding the reins, he took occasion to remark, that Washington never held the reins as represented by the equestrian statue in Union-square. The lecture was illustrated with illumed views.

The Surrogate's Court.—The wills of Sylvanus Warren, Barnett Cole, Nancy Selby, Lucy Clarke and Annie Morris have been admitted to probate without opposition. The matter of the will of James Bogert, Jr., which is contested, was adjourned yesterday to the 13th inst.

The Mayor caused notices to be sent yesterday, to the Heads of the various Departments connected with the City Government, asking them to meet at his office at 1 o'clock to-morrow. It is proposed by the Mayor, that the heads of City Departments hold a regular meeting hereafter, as often as once a week at least, the object being to report the condition of their respective Bureaus, and to consult upon any changes or improvements that may be deemed advisable to be introduced.

The steamer Moses Taylor, Captain McGown, sails to-day at 2 o'clock from the pier foot of Warren street, with the California mails and about 450 passengers. The Star of the West, with the passengers and mails of the 15th of April, will be due on Saturday.

The steamboat Plymouth Rock came into collision with a sloop and schooner about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, while coming to her berth in the North River. There was not much damage done.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Rupture Between the President and Senator Pugh—A Cuban Message—Excitement in the Democratic Caucus—Gen. Walker—The Jaffa Massacre, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Washington, Tuesday, May 4.

An open rupture took place to-day between the President and Senator Pugh, concerning the Marshal for the Northern District of Ohio, and other Ohio appointments. The President used very severe language, and Pugh left in disgust and very angry.

The President is writing a message on Cuba, based on the ideas of the Ostend Manifesto.

An animated discussion took place in the Democratic caucus to-night on Quitman's resolution, introduced by Stephens. Clark and Haskin opposed it strongly, because Kansas was not excepted from the operation of the rule admitting new States, as well as Minnesota and Oregon. A struggle ensued which produced some considerable feeling and excitement, but the Anti-Lecompton men were in such force that it was found advisable to adjourn without coming to any conclusion. O.

From the Reporter for the Associated Press.

Washington, Tuesday, May 4.

The New-Orleans True Delta contains a letter written by General Walker to Senator Slidell, in which he says that the latter's statements in his late speech, were a tissue of misstatements, false insinuations and groundless facts.

The State Department is in possession of all the facts attending the assault on Walter Dickson, the violence on his wife and daughter, and murder of his son-in-law, Steinbeck, in Jaffa. J. W. Gorham, Consul at Jerusalem, aided by Consul-General De Leon, after much labor, succeeded in having the five criminals arrested, four of whom confessed their guilt on the trial, and, at last accounts, the firman from Constantinople for their execution was all that was needed to consummate the tragedy they had commenced, by the forfeiture of their lives and an expiation. The estimony of Mrs. and Miss Dickson reveals the shocking details of the outrages upon them. The State Department has sent letters to Messrs. Gorham and De Leon, complimenting and applauding their conduct.

The motion made by Mr. Colfax in the House, today, to lay on the table the report from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, recommending a total abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, was not regarded as a test question. Both its friends and opponents want an opportunity for discussion.

Matthew Johnson has been appointed Marshal for the Northern District of Ohio, in place of James Finch.

The Democratic Senators were in caucus this morning relative to the legislative business. They agreed to give the General Appropriation bills preference over others, and to meet on and after Monday next at 11 o'clock in the morning.

The Democratic members of the House held a caucus at the Capitol to-night to consider the policy hereafter to be pursued respecting the admission of new States. Speeches were made by Messrs. Stephens, of Georgia; Jewett, of Kentucky; Kunkel, of Maryland; Clark and Haskin, of New-York; Shaw, of Illinois, and others.

Mr. Cochrane was authorized to call another meeting at any time to consider the subject.

Mr. J. Glancy Jones offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That we approve the suggestion of the President that the Appropriation bills should be placed in his hands, for consideration, at least three days before the final adjournment of Congress, and with the view to accomplish it we will give such precedence to these bills as may affect that object.

XXXVth CONGRESS.....First Session.

SENATE.....Washington, Tuesday, May 4.

The President sent to the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, inclosing the correspondence relative to the recent outrage on the American missionary family at Jaffa. Laid on the table to be printed.

A resolution was adopted that from Monday next the Senate meet daily at 11 A. M.

Mr. Mason's resolution in regard to Paraguay was taken up, and Mr. Collamer's amendment, offered some days since to strike out the clause authorizing the President to employ force, was voted on and carried, 31 against 19.

Thereupon on motion of Mr. Mason, the subject was tabled

A bill introduced by Mr. Harlan permitting certain Hungarian settlers in Iowa to preempt their homesteads, was passed.

The bill for the repeal of the Territory Bounties was taken up.

Mr. Clay, of Alabama, made a lengthened speech, giving the statistics of the Cod fishery. The bounty, he said, was first granted because the fishery was momentous to the tonnage commerce and revenue of the United States. At the time of the Revolution fishing vessels comprised one-sixth of the whole tonnage of the country; now it is but one forty-eighth. Then the export of Cod was one-sixth of the whole foreign commerce; now it is but one-six-hundredth part—then it was productive of revenue; now it takes out of the revenue $330,000 annually more than it puts in. An aggregate of $12,000,000 has been paid in bounties, of which $11,000,000 have gone into the pockets of some 15,000 fishermen, or more likely some 3,000 fish-owners of Massachusetts and Maine. Moreover, the bounty was in reality a drawback or compensation for the duties paid on salt, was so regarded by the fishermen themselves, and so proved from the whole history of the bounty. It was besides unconstitutional in principle, inasmuch as it is unequal in its operations, there being virtually no difference whether a State like Massachusetts or Maine be exempted from taxation, or whether the taxes collected from other States be appropriated to pay their drawbacks. Further, the codfishing business is one which pays better than most others, and hence wants no special legislation. He demanded the repeal of the bounties, because they are unconstitutional, unjust, demoralizing, and have signally failed to accomplish the object for which they were originated. The subject was postponed till to-morrow.

Mr. Douglas, of Illinois, made an ineffectual effort to have the Oregon bill taken up.

Mr. Johnson's (of Tennessee) printing bill was read, and Mr. Johnson explained its scope, saying that it economizes a million of dollars annually, besides imposing checks on extravagance and plunder.

A desultory conversation ensued, resulting in two verbal amendments to section eighth, and also the insertion, on motion of Mr. Iverson, of Georgia, in section tenth, "that the binder must be a practical man."

Mr. Brown, of Mississippi, made a speech against printing documents for private distribution, which he considered a monstrous abuse, and altogether unconstitutional. He would print only sufficient extra copies of each document to send one to the archives of each County to establish a political library for public use.

Mr. King, of New-York, expressed accordance with Mr. Brown's views, and would extend the privilege to incorporated colleges.

Mr. Johnson was in favor of, and would at a future time submit, such a proposal.

The bill then passed nem. con. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Washington, Tuesday, May 4.

Mr. Blair, of Missouri, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, reported a bill to settle private land claims in New-Mexico.

Mr. Greenwood, of Arkansas, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported a bill to confirm the sale of the reservation held by the Christian Indians in Kansas, and to provide permanent homes for them.

Mr. Faulkner, of Virginia, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported adversely on the Senate bill granting the Rome Arsenal to the State of New-York on certain conditions.

Mr. Davis, of Massachusetts, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported a bill to amend the law granting land to sailors and mariners, so as to include those of private armed vessels regularly commissioned by the United States.

Mr. Clingman, of North Carolina, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a preamble and resolution that:

Whereas, The treaty between the United States and Great Britain, designated the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty, is, under the interpretation placed upon it by Great Britain, a surrender of the rights of this country, and on the American construction an entangling alliance without mutuality of benefit or restriction, and has been productive only of misunderstanding and controversy between the two Governments; therefore,

Resolved, That the President be requested to take such steps as may be in his judgment best calculated to effect the speedy abrogation of said treaty.

Mr. Ritchie, of Pennsylvania, said this was not a unanimous report of the Committee, and at a proper time he desired to be heard on the subject.

Mr. Clingman asked that the consideration of the subject be postponed till to-morrow. He had a personal reason, independent of a public one, for making this request.

Mr. Colfax, of Indiana, moved to lay the whole subject on the table. Disagreed to, 99 against 110.

The consideration was then postponed till to-morrow, and the Senate bill for the admission of Minnesota into the Union was taken up.

Mr. Barksdale, of Mississippi, intended to introduce a resolution that Gen. Walker's capture was without authority, and merits the condemnation of this House.

Mr. Ritchie, from the Committee on Foreign Af-

Ohio, reported a resolution authorizing the President to adopt such measures as he thinks advisable to procure a satisfactory adjustment of the difficulties between this country and Paraguay.

Mr. CLINGMAN made a report on that part of the President's Message relative to Commodore PAULDING's seizure of Gen. WALKER, in effect condemning that act, but declaring that no proceedings were necessary on the part of Congress.

Mr. RITCHIE, of Pennsylvania, gave notice of a substitute, returning thanks to Commodore PAULDING, his officers and men.

Mr. KINGSBURY, of Minnesota, caused to be read printed remarks, stating the reasons why Minnesota should have the Representatives, and saying that the Government had not been put to a cent of cost in preserving peace in the Territory, while Kansas comes into the Union bringing the infamy of opposition to the laws of the United States.

Mr. PARROTT, of Kansas, asked on what authority Mr. KINGSBURY based that statement.

Mr. KINGSBURY said it was contained in speeches delivered on this floor.

Mr. PARROTT did not think it was contained in any speech save the one just read, and if the reason stated was the only explanation the gentleman had to make, good taste would have suggested his leaving out that expression.

Mr. KINGSBURY was willing the country should judge of its propriety.

Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, moved a substitute, providing that the Constitution of Minnesota be submitted to a new Convention, on the ground that it does not conform to the Constitution and laws of the United States. No such Convention as contemplated by the Enabling Act, had ever been held. The law prescribed that it should be composed of 78 delegates, and there were 108. There were two separate and hostile parties who got up what they called a Constitution. In the election of delegates, the example of other Territories was followed, and was covered all over with fraud. He objected, among other things, to the clause permitting aliens to vote, and expressed the hope that Minnesota would come into the Union directly, and in order. The time had come when Congress ought to put a curb on the Territories, and require them to obey the laws.

Mr. KINGSBURY replied that Minnesota had conformed more closely to the laws than any other Territory.

Mr. SHERMAN ascribed the irregularities to Messrs. SIBLEY, MADARY and others, who, he said, had mingled in frauds and irregularities at home, and infused them into the politics of that Territory.

Mr. JENKINS, of Virginia, replied to Mr. SHERMAN, and said it was a strange state of things when the latter, who voted for the admission of Kansas under the Topeka Constitution, designated the Minnesota Convention as a mob. No man who, in speeches, had advanced every conceivable argument to override the Constitution and laws of the country in favor of a mob, should apply that term to the regularly organized Convention in Minnesota, the Delegates to which were legally elected.

Mr. GARNETT, of Virginia, contended that Minnesota had not complied with the enabling act, nor the Territorial law. Under these circumstances he must consider this as an application de novo for admission. He argued that there was not a population in Minnesota for more than one Representative, let alone three, as Mr. STEPHENS proposed.

Mr. GROW, of Pennsylvania, said if a Constitution embodied the people's will, as this did, it had his sanction, unless the provisions engrafted on it were violative of the Constitution of the United States, and repugnant to the genius of the institutions of the Republic. In reply to Mr. JENKINS, he said the Free-State men of Kansas had never sought to pervert the Territorial organization without the consent of Congress, but Minnesota had already subverted the Territorial Legislature. Where is the President, with his Federal army, to disperse that Legislature, as he in Kansas dispersed the Free-State Legislature?

Mr. LAWRENCE, of Ohio, made a personal explanation, taking exceptions to what Mr. CAMPBELL said the other day, and added that he came to his own conclusion to support the English Kansas bill.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, repeated that it was understood that both his colleagues, (Messrs. COX and LAWRENCE,) with other members of the Douglas Democracy, agreed with other Anti-Lecomptonists never to yield in the Kansas controversy to any proposition that did not give the people the right to vote directly on their constitution.

Mr. HARRIS, of Illinois, said he was never a party to such an arrangement, and did not know what arrangements were made during his illness.

Mr. MARSHALL, of Illinois, remarked he never directly or indirectly made a pledge to support anything. He was controlled by the dictates of his own judgment.

Mr. WASHBURN, of Maine, said he was reluctant to support the Crittenden-Montgomery amendment until he distinctly understood that twenty Anti-Lecompton Democrats would not in any event vote for any proposition more objectionable to the Republicans and South Americans.

Mr. MARSHALL, of Kentucky, understood and agreed to that proposition.

Mr. UNDERWOOD, of Kentucky, desired to say he had entered into no understanding or agreement. He acted from his sense of right.

Mr. CAMPBELL corroborated the truth of Mr. WASHBURN's statement.

Mr. CLARK, of New-York, remarked, at the meeting he attended, the Anti-Lecompton Democrats pledged themselves to support the Crittenden-Montgomery amendment, and he had kept his pledge throughout.

Loba, a Mormon Emissary—The Combination against Floyd, and Motive of the Intrigue—The Privateer Service—New Sloops-of-War, &c., &c.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 3, 1858.

Information of the most confidential nature, from a source entitled to the very highest credit, confirms me in the supposition which was suggested in a letter to the TIMES last week, to the effect that LOBA, the Mormon, whose statements you have published, is really a cunningly disguised agent of BRIGHAM YOUNG. I wish that I were at liberty to disclose the startling facts which I am in possession of, relating to this subject, but the seal of confidence must not be broken, even though the Government is left in ignorance of what is most important for it to know. The Government, however, may have this information if it will evince a decent desire to possess itself beforehand of what will cause it some consternation to learn first from the disclosures effected by events. I simply make the general suggestion for the benefit of the public, that all rumors and reports from Salt Lake, except those derived from General JOHNSTON, or Messrs. POWELL and MCCULLOCH, should be received with great caution. The Government, I am confident, have a very indistinct idea of the sort of enemy with whom it has to deal.

My dispatch relative to the combination which has been tacitly formed for the purpose of forcing Governor FLOYD out of the Cabinet, has caused considerable conversation and speculation, and has drawn vehement denials from some of his friends. This, however, makes no difference, as my dispatch was based on facts, not suppositions; and it may be satisfactory to add that one or two of the best informed of Governor FLOYD's friends are conscious of these facts, and are determined to make use of them. The groundwork of the hostility to Governor FLOYD is composed of several distinct webs, but the obvious cause is FLOYD's especial tendencies in connection with the defection of DOUGLAS and WISE. Mr. FLOYD has thus far stood up as the special representative of mild measures towards these Democratic recusants, in opposition to the more violent policy of Mr. Secretary COBB, between whom and DOUGLAS there did not exist a very cordial feeling, even before the latter's break with the Administration. COBB has accordingly, from the start, desired to close the door against the possible return of DOUGLAS to the Democratic fold, in which desire BRIGHT's cordial hatred of the Little Giant caused him most heartily to sympathize. These gentlemen, in fact, along with SLIDELL and at least two other prominent Democratic Senators, wished very summarily to cut off both DOUGLAS and WISE, but FLOYD opposed it, and this brought down their hostility upon himself. No doubt the destruction of FLOYD's pretensions as a Presidential candidate, has also something to do with the effort to break him down, since Mr. COBB would thus have got rid of three rivals in a very short space of time. The defection of DOUGLAS afforded him and BRIGHT intense satisfaction, and FLOYD is not to be allowed even to sympathize with him, except in retirement. As to your New-York politicians, certain of them, they ought to take warning and assiduously make deductions.

The bill of Mr. DAVIS, of Massachusetts, relative to bounty land for privateersmen, to be reported on the first occasion from the Committee on Naval Affairs, extends the provisions of the act of 1855, to all persons who served on private armed vessels in the War of 1812. This act made ample provision for all who served ashore or afloat in that War, even to teamsters, but neglected entirely the privateersmen who took more risks and received less prize money than the regular marine,—an evidently unfair piece of discrimination, especially as this Government, in response to the demand of the Congress of Paris, has attached such importance to the privateer service. The report which accompanies the bill says the Committee are "disposed to recognize the private armed service as the legitimate offspring of our system of Government," and accordingly propose to place privateersmen in the same position as to bounty lands as those in the regular service. The report states that there were about fifteen hundred men and boys in the private service in 1812, many of whom, however, also served on board United States ships, received bounty land, and consequently have no claim under this bill. Many have also died, leaving no heirs who can claim the grant. The amount of land granted, therefore, will be indifferent, but the principle is a desirable one to establish.

The Administration have been somewhat stirred up lately to the importance of constructing some new sloops-of-war of small size, capable of ascending the Chinese and Paraguayan waters. There is now here a member of the firm of THOMAS HUNT & Co., of Hong Kong, who is seeking indemnification for property destroyed by the Chinese, and also compensation for acting as United States Marshal, who has made earnest representations of the necessity of such an addition to our naval force to the State Department. This gentleman tells General CASS that if our Government does not thus provide itself with the means of protecting the property of American citizens, it ought, at least, to give them permission to do it themselves—in which case the money, he says, would not be wanting. It appears that, though there is authority for our consuls in foreign ports to appoint marshals to take charge of, feed and keep in custody persons ordered into confinement by the consul, there is no provision whatever for remunerating the marshal for his service and expense. The English Marshal has a prison-ship furnished, a salary, office, clerks, &c.

The lull in speculation as to Kansas in Congress, caused by the disposal of the question, has been partially succeeded by speculation on the result, in Kansas itself, of the vote on the Constitution. Mr. PARROT, the delegate, says, that the propositions of Congress will not be accepted in a single precinct of Kansas. Gov. WALKER concurs substantially in this opinion, and thinks besides that the population will be large enough to entitle the people to come on here with a new Constitution, and application for admission next Winter, giving us only a brief interregnum of a few months to the reign of Kansas topics in Congress. I understand that Mr. BURLINGAME has received pressing invitations from Kansas people to go out there and take the stump against the acceptance of this Constitution, and it is not unlikely that he will go. LOTTERY CAUTION.—We would respectfully caution the public against the many frauds practiced upon the community under the guise of Lotteries. There are but four States in which lotteries are legalized, viz.: Kentucky, Delaware, Maryland and Georgia, therefore, all circulars or advertisements directing parties to send to New-York or to any place in which lotteries are unlawful, can be safely set down as bogus or swindling concerns; and too much praise cannot be awarded to his Honor, Mayor TIEMANN, for the strong and successful efforts he is making towards breaking them up. ☞ QUERU'S COD LIVER OIL JELLY, approved by the New-York Academy of Medicine June 3, 1857, contains 85 per cent. pure Norway Oil.

The marked repugnance which many invalids feel for every kind of oil, and especially for Cod Liver Oil, prevents many persons from using it, even in cases where the physician prescribes it as the only remedy for the disease; or if the invalid, after many efforts, succeeds in taking it, the disgust and repugnance neutralize, to a certain extent, the good effect of the remedy. Often diarrhœa, or vomitings, injure the state of the patient, and the remedy is an injury instead of a benefit. These unpleasant effects are entirely obviated by the use of my Cod Liver Oil Jelly. The invalid, if he follows my direction, can take it without perceiving the least taste of the oil. I also particularly and respectfully call the attention of physicians to the modus operandi of this Jelly in the stomach. Instead of this feeling of nausea, more or less painful, which no patient escapes, this Jelly, taken almost without taste, is gradually dissolved in the stomach. The Oil, by its combination with the sugar, forms a beneficial emulsion, and being carried in this manner in an infinitesimal molecular division, every particle acts, and no loss of the remedy can happen.

From the New-York Dispatch.

THE RIGHTS OF ALL MUST AND SHALL BE RESPECTED.—For a series of years, a practice has prevailed among a certain class of merchants and salesmen, especially in this City, we regret to say, who, in order to sell their goods, resort to the vile habit of slandering or misrepresenting the character and goods of a brother merchant. The more enterprising and energetic the individual, the more malignant and unscrupulous the assailants. The particular class we now allude to are engaged in the Carpet trade, and a popular house of seventeen years' standing is made a target of. We allude to HIRAM ANDERSON'S, No. 99 Bowery. This practice has been of late resorted to by some of the Dry Goods men in neighboring villages, who keep Carpets, in the hope of retaining custom at home. Every subterfuge is resorted to, both in this City and the adjacent towns and villages, to prevent persons visiting the Great METROPOLITAN CARPET EMPORIUM. We recommend the public to judge for themselves. Visit this great Carpet mart, examine the immense stock, and compare the prices there asked for goods with other establishments. We vouch for it, the slanders will be refuted, nor leave a vestige on which to rest a doubt.

DEATH OF AN ESTEEMED MERCHANT.—The papers of to day announce the death of MICHAEL OLCOTT BARRY senior partner of the house of Barry & Brothers, in Pearl street. He died yesterday noon at his residence at Savin Hill, Dorchester, after a brief illness. His age was 45 years. He was first attacked with the pleurisy, which was succeeded by lung fever. His disease was sudden, and many of his business friends were not aware of his illness until after his death. Mr. Barry was the son of the late Rev. Dr. Barry of Jersey City, and a son-in-law of the late Deacon William Worthington. His death will leave a void in a family circle recently bereaved by the death of a father and mother. During the sixteen years Mr. Barry has lived in Boston, he has gained the confidence and esteem of a wide circle of friends, by the marked ingenuousness of his character, his unobtrusive manners, a humane bearing, and the sterling integrity which marked his conduct. He has truly left an honorable name among men, while in the more private relations of life, he was noted for the virtues and graces which make home the seat of the highest earthly enjoyment. He has gone to the grave in the very prime of life, when he was surrounded with every outward blessing deemed desirable.—Boston Transcript.

This is by far the most ABSORBING and THRILLING TALE OF LIFE AMONG THE INDIANS ever published. The Heart-rending Trials, Sufferings and Privations of the lovely heroine, BLANCHE BERTRAND, whose life was in constant peril, and who suffered more than pen can relate, during her captivity, will enlist the SYMPATHIES of every reader.

The popular and distinguished author has executed his task in a masterly manner. In this class of Tales, it is universally admitted that he has no equal at the present day. In speaking of this new Tale, the Ledger says: "It is a narrative of wild and perilous adventures among the savages of our western border, and is full of stirring incidents, intensified by poetic fire, and meHowed by subduing pathos. At the outset it takes hold of the heart with a vigorous grasp, and leads the imagination captive."

The NEW-YORK LEDGER also contains contributions from the pens of the following distinguished writers:

GEORGE D. PRENTICE,
MRS. L. H. SIGOURNEY,
T. S. ARTHUR,
SYLVANUS COBB, JR.,
FANNY FERN,
ALICE CARY,
EMERSON BENNETT,
WILLIAM ROSS WALLACE,

and a host of other popular authors, whose names constantly appear in its columns.

As an indication of the popularity of the LEDGER, we need only mention the simple fact that its circulation is larger than that of any TEN literary papers in the country. Its great success is owing to the fact that it secures the best writers in the country, and spares no expense in getting up the BEST FAMILY PAPER—a paper of high moral tone.

The exalted reputation of its well known contributors, the practical and unmistakably pure and healthy character of all its articles, and the care which is taken that not even one offensive word shall appear in its columns, have gained for the NEW-YORK LEDGER a position that no literary paper has ever before occupied. We feel, and always have felt, since the LEDGER attained its immense circulation, that a tremendous responsibility rested on us, and have endeavored to discharge that responsibility conscientiously, feeling confident that ultimately we should receive the thanks of thousands and tens of thousands of families.

The LEDGER is for sale every week at all the periodical stores throughout the United States.

The subscription price is $2 per annum when sent by mail, but no subscriptions are wanted from towns where there are news offices established.

ROBERT BONNER, Proprietor,
No. 44 Ann-st., New-York.

PROCLAMATION,

By JOHN A. KING, Governor of the State of New-York.

It having been represented to me by Coroner Connery, of the City of New-York, and the Jury which investigated the case, "That the body of CHARLES L. SAMUELS had been found in the East River, at the foot of Washington-st., Brooklyn," and that the said Samuels was first murdered, and then thrown into the river; accompanied with a request that I would offer a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the murderer or murderers;

In compliance with such request, I do hereby offer a reward of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS to any person or persons, who will give such information as will lead to the apprehension and conviction of the person or persons guilty of the murder of the said Charles L. Samuels.

In witness whereof I have hereunto affixed my name and the Privy Seal of the State, this seventeenth (L. S.) day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight.

By the Governor,
(Signed,) JOHN A. KING.

THE INCREASED USE OF WING'S FARINA CRACKERS, with the commendatory remarks of Parents, Teachers, and Physicians, as well as many persons in various positions in life, whose powers have been more or less weakened by sedentary habits or occupations, is strong proof of the healthful and beneficial results which have attended their use.

Their great nourishing properties, and the ease with which the stomach digests this pleasant food, are well established, and there can be, on testing them, no doubt of this fact, viz: that the same weight of WING'S CRACKERS will make more good blood, and act more kindly upon the delicate texture of the stomach, than anything else ever introduced in this or any other form of bread.

All true Farina Crackers have the name WING stamped on them, and those wishing to buy should ask for WING'S CRACKERS.

They may be had at retail of the best Family Grocers generally, and at wholesale only of

NARROW ESCAPE OF NENA SAHIB

Cotton Buoyant---Consols 96 3-4a96 1-8.

HALIFAX, Tuesday, May 4.

The Royal Mail steamship Europa, Capt. LEITCH, left Liverpool at 4½ o'clock P. M. of Saturday, April 24, and arrived at Halifax at 10 o'clock A. M. on Tuesday, May 4.

The Europa reports, April 24, passed the American ships S. R. Mallory, of Key West, Ocean Pearl, of Portland, West Point, of New-York, City of New-York, and British ship Talavera, all bound into Liverpool.

On the 25th, passed a screw steamer, supposed the Taurus, bound up channel.

On the 27th, passed the English ship Charles Chalmer, steering Westward.

On the 30th, lat. 48°, long. 39°, exchanged signals with the British ship Samuel Winter, bound West.

May 3d, lat 44°, long. 57°, exchanged signals with the British brig Jessie Miller.

The screw steamship City of Baltimore, from New-York at noon of the 10th, arrived at Liverpool at 5 P. M. April 23.

The Royal Mail steamship Persia, Capt. JUDKINS, from New-York at 8 A. M. of the 14th, arrived at Liverpool at 6:20 A. M. of the 24th.

GREAT BRITAIN.

On the 21st the House of Lords was not in session. In the House of Commons, the time was occupied in debating the bill for the abolition of the Church rates.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the issue of £2,008,000 Exchequer bills.

On the 22d the Oaths' bill was read a second time in the House of Lords, but Lord DERBY announced that he should continue to oppose that portion of the measure which removes the Jewish disabilities.

In the House of Commons the Attorney-General had announced, in response to an inquiry from Mr. ROEBUCK, that the Government would not take further proceedings against Dr. BERNARD, in regard to the French conspiracy.

Lord STANLEY had stated, that until the Government received the opinion of the Government and Legislature of Canada, he would abstain from stating their intentions with reference to the privilege of the Hudson Bay Company.

The subject of the Consular and Diplomatic service of the country had been debated,

Upon a motion to bring the financial part of it more immediately before the control of Parliament, the proposition had been rejected.

A resolution was adopted after some debate for the appointment of a Select Committee to inquire into the destitution alleged to prevail in Donegal, Ireland.

A bill was introduced and read the first time abolishing the property qualifications of Members of Parliament.

On the 23d in the Lords, Earl GREY moved for copies of the correspondence between the Colonial Secretary and the North American Colonies, in reference to any acts passed for giving an exclusive right to any one company to establish telegraphic communication between Great Britain and North America.

The Earl of CARNARVON had no objection to the motion, but suggested that it should be amended by the insertion of the words "or extracts of correspondence."

The Earl of DERBY assured Earl GRAY that no exclusive privileges would be conferred upon any particular company—and trusted that under the circumstances he would not press for the production of any correspondence.

Lord STANLEY, of Alderley, expressed the hope tha there was no truth in the report that the telegraphic communication between India, Malta and Corfu was about to be placed in the hands of the Austrian Government.

Lord DERBY said that no exclusive privileges would be conferred on any one that were likely to be injurious to British interests.

After a short discussion the motion was agreed to.

In the House of Commons Mr. GLADSTONE asked whether it was the intention of the Government to lay the papers on the table at this period, on the subject of the Danubian Principalities. In conformity with the declaration of the first British Plenipotentiary at the Conferences at Paris, in 1856, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said the result of the investigations of the Commission would shortly be submitted to the Conference at Paris, and it would not be in his power to lay any documents previously on the table.

Sir E. PERRY asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether instructions had been sent to India that terms of amnesty, including protection in matters of religion, should be held out to the inhabitants of Oude, excepting in cases of heinous crime; and if no such instructions had been sent, whether in the opinion of the Government it was not expedient to do so.

Mr. DISRAELI replied that instructions had been sent to India that there should be full toleration and protection to property, so far as was consistent with justice.

On motion of Mr. DISRAELI, a resolution imposing a stamp of one penny on all bankers' checks, was carried amidst loud cheers.

During the debate on the Navy Estimates, Mr. DRUMMOND called serious attention to the State of the national defences, pointing to the antipathy that prevailed towards England on the Continent, and characterizing the state of affairs in Europe as more unsettled than at any time since the death of PITT.

The fine clipper ship James Baines, built at Boston, but owned in Liverpool, was destroyed by fire in her dock at Liverpool. She had just returned from Calcutta with a cargo of Indian produce, only a portion of which had been discharged. The value of the vessel and cargo had been estimated at £170,000. The vessel was a complete wreck, and it was feared that very little of her cargo would be saved. It was said that time bargains in insurance had been made upon her, and that they had not expired. The insurances were expected to be disputed. Another account says that the policies had regularly expired, and the loss would fall upon the owners.

The returns of the Board of Trade for March show a falling off in the exports of nearly a million and a half sterling, as compared with the same month last year.

The United Service Club of London had given a grand banquet to the Duc DE MALAKOFF. The Duke of CAMBRIDGE presided. PELISSIER, in returning thanks, said that his appearance amongst them would recall the glorious alliance of the two countries, and his greatest desire was to be hailed as the representative of a loyal, firm and dignified policy. His belief was that the basis of a complete and lasting alliance was that the honor of one country should never be sacrificed to the honor of the other. He came amongst them with an open and friendly hand, full of respect for their institutions and their Sovereign, and it was with the utmost sincerity he joined in the toast drank in her honor. He trusted that the prosperity of England, and the alliance with his country, might endure forever. PELISSIER'S reception was enthusiastic.

The operations on the Atlantic cable were going actively forward. The United States steam-frigate Niagara would be compelled to leave her berth at Plymouth on the high tide of May 15, or remain another month, as her great draft of water would prevent her getting out, except at the highest stages of the tide. The experiments with the new paying out machinery were giving general satisfaction.

Mr. GOUGH, the Temperance lecturer, applied to the Court of Queen's Bench, for criminal information against Dr. LEES, also a writer on temperance. He had charged GOUGH with being intoxicated and using narcotics. This was disproved by affidavits. Lord CAMPBELL said it was not a case for the Court to interfere in, and the rule was refused.

Application was also made in the same Court, by the Chairman of the Great Northern Railway, for criminal information against the London Times for certain alleged libellous strictures upon him. The motion was refused.

The citizens of Manchester have given a banquet to Sir JAMES BROOKE, the Rajah of Savawak, the motive being the development of a trade with China by way of Borneo. Sir JAMES BROOKE, in a lengthy speech, called upon the Government to assume the sovereignty he had obtained on the Northwest Coast of Borneo, and the London Times indorses his views.

A serious riot had occurred between the English and Irish laborers in the iron district, near Newcastle-upon-Tyne. The military had to be called out to restore order.

Queen VICTORIA had been reviewing 15,000 troops at the camp at Aldershot, and General PELISSIER was expected to visit the Queen at the camp.

The Dusseldorf Gazette starts a rumor that Queen VICTORIA is again in an interesting situation.

Money continued over-abundant, and the best bills were readily negotiated at 2½, and in some cases at 2⅜, per cent. Applications for discount at the Bank were extremely light.

The London Stock Exchange, on Friday, closed steadily, although the funds were for some time depressed, by Naples having rejected the demands of Sardinia.

An extraordinary meeting of the Great Eastern Steam Navigation Company was held on Saturday. The report stated that the Directors, since the last meeting of the shareholders, had devoted considerable time in procuring information, and in obtaining specifications, estimates and tenders, for completing the works on board the Company's ship Leviathan, to enable her to proceed to sea. To effect this, a further outlay of £172,000 was necessary, which sum, added to the present liabilities of the Company, amounted to £211,262, to meet which the Directors proposed to issue debenture preference shares to that sum, on such terms as were most expedient. The total cost of the ship would be £804,522, or at the rate of £34 per ton, taking the ship at builders' measurement, 24,000 tons. The Directors regretted that they were unable to complete her equipments before the ensuing Autumn, when it was intended to make several preliminary voyages to America, for the purpose of testing the ship's capabilities, and in the Spring to commence her voyages to India or Australia.

In the experiments made by Mr. WHITEHOUSE at Greenwich, through 1,000 miles of the Atlantic cable, about half a second intervened between making a signal at one end and its appearance at the other; but the difficulty arising from detention of electricity was then thought to have been overcome. It appears, however, in the experiments through the entire cable at Devonport, that a considerable obstacle to rapid communication arises from that cause. With the symbolic alphabet at present used, about two words and a half per minute only can be transmitted through the whole length of wire, but it is hoped that by simplifying the code of signals double that number may be transmitted. Even supposing that objected to, be attained, the rate of transmission would not be more than one-third the speed with which messages can be sent with the present arrangements of the symbols from London to Paris.

INDIA.

The Calcutta mail of March 23 reached Alexandria April 23.

There is intelligence from Lucknow to the 22d of March. On the 20th, Brigadier CAMPBELL'S force returned from the pursuit of the enemy. On the 21st, the Mobries, the retreat of NENA SAHIB, was stormed. He escaped, and a reward of 50,000 rupees was offered for his head.

General OUTRAM'S force had discovered and destroyed a retreat of the rebels in Lucknow, and the Prime Minister is among those reported as killed.

The fanatics continued to fire on the British.

The Governor-General's proclamation calling on the Terminders to submit, had produced no effect.

Peace prevailed at Oude, and the enemy were flying towards Secundra.

JUNG BAHADOOR was to go to Allahabad.

No civil officer had yet been sent to Lucknow by the Government. Some of the inhabitants were returning to the City.

The heat of the weather was increasing daily.

Sir HOPE GRANT had dispersed a body of the insurgents under Rajah GAILANNGH, at Karee, taking 12 of their guns.

The disarming act was being inforced in the Northwest Provinces.

The sentence of the King of Delhi has not been made public.

In the Calcutta import market business in general was limited. The produce market was dull. Government securities had improved. Exchange on London was 2s. ½d.@2s. ¾d. for credits, and 2s. 1⅝d.@2s. 1¾d. for documents.

FRANCE.

The sensation created by BERNARD'S acquittal was subsiding. It was reported that the Constitutionnel was to receive a warning for its inflammatory article on the subject.

An imperial return asserts that next year France will have fifteen iron paddle and screw steamers, independently of sailing ships fitted with the screw and gun boats, steam transports and floating batteries.

The elections were to take place in Paris the day after the Europa sailed. General PERROT, who was nominated by the Opposition, had avowed himself the Government candidate.

M. LOUIS FOULD, brother of the Minister of Finance, is dead.

It is stated that the Director of the Constitutionnel has been dismissed for the article on England. He receives an indemnity of 50,000 francs, which every Director has a right to in case of so sudden a removal. The paper will now print a conciliatory article.

The Bourse had become more buoyant. The three per cents closed firm on the 23d, at 69f. 30c.

Another ship-of-the-line had been added to the Toulon fleet, which is to consist of fifteen ships-of-war.

The Chamber of Commerce at Lyons have adopted resolutions calling for the removal of the duties on the raw material employed in the manufacture of silk.

ITALY.

A dispatch from Turin, of April 22, says that the reply of the Count of Naples, to the last Sardinian note, was officially communicated to-day to Count CAVOUR. It is couched in moderate terms, but contains flat refusals of the Sardinian demands.

The report that Sardinian officers, on leave of absence, had been ordered home, is unfounded.

The debate in the Sardinian Chamber of Deputies, on the new Press and Jury, had closed, and the measure was adopted, in principle, by a vote of 129 to 29.

SPAIN.

A telegram from Madrid of the 22d says the Government has been questioned on the subject of the intention attributed to President BUCHANAN to make war against Spain, and declared the rumor unfounded.

AUSTRIA.

It was rumored, but not credited, that England had requested the Austrian Government to act as a Mediator between England and Naples.

DENMARK.

The semi-official journal of Copenhagen announces that if the German Diet does not accept the last proposition of the Danish Cabinet, Denmark will not make any further concession in the question of the Duchies.

RUSSIA.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg announces that after May 30, foreign ships will be admitted to Autra, Sukum, Kale and other ports in the Black Sea.

GREECE.

A new law upon the Press, of a stringent character, had been passed by the Greek Chamber.

TURKEY.

Trieste advices state that the Porte has censured the Viceroy of Egypt for giving his authority for a canal across the Isthmus of Suez, and commanding him not to support the scheme.

PERSIA.

According to a French account, new difficulties have arisen between England and Persia, the English claiming that the treaty had been violated.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

The Cape of Good Hope advices are to the 10th of March.

The enlistment of Kaffirs for service in India was progressing slowly.

Conflicts between the natives had again commenced.

Late dates from the west coast of Africa report that Dr. LIVINGSTONE had left Sierra Leone for the Cape of Good Hope.

The coast trade was dull, and the natives were holding out for higher prices.

THE VERY LATEST.

By Telegraph from London to Liverpool.

LONDON, Saturday—P. M.

FRANCE.

The Siecle formally accuses the Univers of endeavoring to provoke a bad feeling between the French and English nations, and asks how the honor of France can be affected by the verdict of twelve English jurymen.

The report of M. DEVARIX, President of the Committee of the Legislative Corps on the Budget, insists on a real equilibrium being established between the revenue and expenditures, without having recourse to extraordinary resources. It recommends the abolition of the tax called the second decime, established for a temporary purpose during the Crimean war, and asserts that the honor of the Government is involved in its abrogation.

The report points out that the proper way to effect this is not to rely upon improvements in the revenue but to prepare the way by reductions in the expenditures. Lastly the report complains of the position of the Legislative corps in reference to the estimates, and that its suggestions for retrenchment are of no avail if opposed by the Council of State.

The Moniteur of Saturday announces that a statement in the Independance Belge, that France is increasing her naval armaments, is untrue.

According to the Ministerial Journal of Berlin, the European Commission of the Danube has decided in favor of the Salina mouth of that water.

The Paris correspondence of the Times says, that M. RANEE, Director of the Constitutionnel, has been restored to his post on that paper.

TUESDAY, May 4—P. M.

The advance in Exchange to 109¼@109½, reached yesterday, was established on the dealings to-day for the Boston mail, but tended to check business, which closed dull, at this quotation. The standard drawers control the supply, for the most part, and are made indifferent to business, except at top rates, by the abundance of Money, and the difficulty of employing their balances here to advantage. Francs are scarce, and command 5.15@5.13¾ to the dollar, which rates, if continued, will justify some partial exports of Bullion for French account, by the next direct steamer. In the present extraordinary state of the Bank reserve, with the immediate prospect of $3,000,000 or $3,500,000 a month additional from California, and the usual Summer tendency of the interior Gold exchanges to the City, a moderate export demand would not come amiss. To familiarize the public or the banks to so large a sum total in New-York as thirty or forty millions dollars may not, in the present state of trade and the uncertainty of the effect of this accumulation upon the revival of business next Fall, be particularly desirable. An outlet of any considerable part of the sum now held in New-York through the Government disbursements, is next to impossible. Of the exchange of $5,000,000 for Treasury Bills next week, about $3,000,000 may fall to New-York, unless the Philadelphia and Boston bankers should outbid us, but even this will be only a very temporary transfer to the Government office here, to return to bank in a few weeks. The disposition at Bank to employ the surplus means now on deposit, even at low rates on long paper, is on the increase, as we find that nearly all the 4@6 months bills made through the Auction rooms are sought after; leaving but little business to the Discount Brokers for account of private lenders. The large Banks are also accommodating their correspondents in the interior where discounts or overdrafts are needed in aid of specie payments, to which the Virginia and Georgia banks have recently returned. On the other hand, the New-Orleans, Mobile and St. Louis (and perhaps Kentucky,) banks have large balances to their credit here.

The news from England to-day by the Europa at Halifax shows an active business in Cotton at Liverpool at advancing prices; and a steady Stock and Money market in London, are the reverse of anything like political trouble, for which some of our Wall-street people have been looking by every steamer since the overthrow of the Palmerston Ministry. Consols are quoted firm, and Discounts cheap and easy. The least favorable feature in the news is the continued dullness in Breadstuffs. Of Cotton, the sales for the week at Liverpool are reported at 88,000 bales. The additional advance comes to the aid of a stock of 630,000 bales in our ports, yet to go forward, nearly double the stock of the same period last season, and the heaviest on the 1st of May known for four years past. Mr. WRIGHT'S circular, of this date, reports the following:

COMPARATIVE MOVEMENT OF THE CROP—1858.

	1858.	1857.	1856.	1855.	1854.

The prices at the South will, no doubt, respond to the steamer's news, as the damage to the new crop, recently planted, both by flood and frost, is such as to impart additional strength to the market. On this point the circular just quoted remarks:

The Mississippi River below Cairo continues to rise, and the danger of a second and more injurious overflow is imminent. The rise had been greater than the former flood by about three feet at Cairo on the 25th ult., and about six inches at Memphis on the 27th. It had receded at Cairo three inches up to the 27th, and five inches further on 28th. There must have been a further rise since the 27th at Memphis, but probably not exceeding six inches. Some time must yet elapse before the extent of country that may be overflowed can be ascertained. Replanting after this second overflow would be as late as in 1850, when, after a very dry and hot Summer, about half the customary yield of the swamp lands was the result. The frosts from 24th to 28th seem to have been more severe in South Carolina and Georgia than farther west, and perhaps some replanting may be necessary. But this point is also involved in much uncertainty at present, for want of accurate and reliable information.

There was less firmness shown on the Stock Exchange, at the opening of business this morning, than on Monday, and, as the call of the Share list proceeded, the absence of the same liberal orders, which gave buoyancy to the market yesterday, was taken advantage of by short sellers, who pressed their time options with a good deal of spirit. After the English news, prices were steadier, but, at the close of the afternoon Board, left off dull. The Bulls within the Board lent no particular support to the market, and the Bears rather carried the day by selling at 10@30 days, at a commission of ⅛@¼ ℔ cent. from the cash rates. The advantage, however, was more in the closing tone of the dealings than in the decline upon the shares for immediate delivery. New-York Central sold at 89⅜, Erie 24¾, Rock Island 79½, Hudson 30⅞@31, Michigan Southern 26¾@27, Preferred 53, Toledo 45, Reading 48¼@¾, and Milwaukee 30 ℔ cent. There was a further demand for Delaware and Hudson at 105, at which the buying appears to be pretty steady, as against the late manifestation of a bearish feeling against the stock, and on Pacific Mail shares there was a further advance of 2¾ ℔ cent. In State Stocks and some of the railway loans, the cash orders were kept up from yesterday, and Tennessees and Virginias were ¼@½ ℔ cent. dearer. New-York Central Sixes were done at 88¼, ex dividend, and the 7 ℔ Cents. Convertible at 103 ℔ cent. The Share list after the adjournment of the Brokers was weaker for Michigan Southern, 26⅝@¼, and for Rock Island, 78¾@79 ℔ cent.

The following is Tuesday's business at the office of the Assistant Treasurer:

Receipts	$33,364 10
Payments	92,931 21
Balance	3,073,622 37

The receipts include $33,000 from Customs.

The Cincinnati Gazette thus refers to the latest phase of the embarrassments of the Ohio and Mississippi Company, in which a number of our leading South-street merchants hold a large interest:

"An effort is being made to create an impression that the scheme lately proposed for capitalizing the various liabilities of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad Company, did not proceed from the Contractors of the Company. It is true, the proposition was not made in the name of the Contractors, as a body, but the gentlemen who concocted and put forth the schemes are largely interested in the contract with the Company; and it is well known that the proposition was intended to represent that interest. This is evident from the language used by Mr. ASPINWALL, in his letter, disapproving of the scheme. He remarked: 'We should not forget, gentlemen, that we are not only Contractors, but also Trustees of the Company.' And we may remark, in this connection, that had the Contractors acted as faithful Trustees, there would probably have been no occasion for the issue that stockholders are about to make with the existing management. It is not to be denied that the credit of the Ohio & Mississippi Railroad Company is worse now than at any previous time in its history. Not only has the payment of interest on bonds been neglected, but the wages of the employes of the road have been withheld, to such an extent, that an open revolt has been threatened. These defaults have occurred while the road has been earning an average of $135,000 ℔ month, being equal to $1,620,000 ℔ year. Out of such an income the interest and expenses of the road should certainly have been paid, and it remains to be explained why the earnings have not been applied to the discharge of these obligations. It is also worth while to inquire why the interest was passed without calling a meeting of Directors? Such a course of conduct is certainly well calculated to exasperate stockholders; and the action that leading parties in this interest propose to take, is the only course by which the remains of the property of the Corporation can be saved from utter ruin. There is no time to be lost either."

Mr. SIMEON DRAPER, Auctioneer for Stocks and Bonds, has removed his office to No. 36 Pine-street.

The new Board of Directors of the Park Bank have reelected Mr. HOWES, their President, and Mr. MACY, Cashier.

An election for nine Directors of the Central Railroad of New-Jersey, for the ensuing year, was held at Elizabethport, yesterday, which resulted in the choice of the following gentlemen: John T. Johnston, John C. Green, Wm. E Dodge, Adam Norrie, B. Williamson, John O. Sterns, Alfred Vail, F. T. Frelinghuysen and H. D. Maxwell.

The Janesville, Wisconsin, Gazette notices the following arrangement between the Galena and Milwaukee Roads:

"The arrangement between the Milwaukee and Mississippi and the Galena and Chicago Railroads, which we mentioned a few days since, has been completed. As soon as the Y is finished at Bass Creek, which has already been commenced, the cars of the latter Company will run to Janesville on the M. & M. road. The connection with the Galena road will be of great convenience to such of the traveling public as desire a route directly west from this city to the Mississippi River, and to the towns and cities on the Galena and Chicago and Illinois Central railroads. It also forms a more direct connection between this city and the Illinois coal region, from which we anticipate at no distant day important benefits. This connection is one that has long been needed, and will, doubtless, be as beneficial to the railroad companies interested as to the public."

The Cleveland Herald reports that all the Roads connecting at that city are doing a fair traffic, as compared with last season.

The following is a comparative statement of the exports (exclusive of specie) from New-York to foreign ports for the week and since Jan. 1:
